The Ukrainian Pioneers' Association of Alberta is pleased to be able to publish this volume of the late Dr. Vladimir J. Kaye's research on early immigration and settlement in the province of Alberta to match its sister volume on Manitoba by the Ukrainian Research Foundation of Toronto published in 1875. At the same time we should express our thanks to the Ukrainian Research Foundation directors and Mrs. Grace E. Kaye for transferring their rights to the completed typewritten manuscript of this research to make it possible to proceed with its publication. Nevertheless, since this research material is only part of the total research on immigration and settlement in Canada, we have decided to include almost all the introductory features of the Manitoba volume because they referred to all of Dr. Kaye's research on this problem and are necessary to the understanding of the procedure in his study. The most important change in this part of our publication is the substitution of a 1915 map of a part of Alberta which records most of the post offices in the areas settled by Ukrainian immigrants at that time. A feature of this map is that it also has the boundaries of the provincial electoral districts in the early years of the twentieth century.

To make this publication still more valuable, we have also added an addendum at the back which consists of two features:

- 1) Notes of interviews with surviving members of the families of persons recorded in Dr. Kaye's research when the place of origin was omitted because of faulty records and, sometimes, information from these members in an attempt to disentangle confusing evidence in the official sources examined by Dr. Kaye.
- 2) Information obtained by Isidore Goresky through letters from the federal government archives and records of Stephen Stogrin on Smoky Lake settlement in regard to individual settlers who had arrived in 1899 but whose names had not been included in the research.

While acknowledgements for aid received in the publication of the volume on Manitoba have been included in the introductory section of this volume, we would be remiss in our duty if we failed to report the generous financial aid received from Multiculturalism Canada, The Ukrainian Canadian Foundation of Taras Shevchenko, and Alberta Culture — Province of Alberta. Without their aid this research on the early Ukrainian settlers in Alberta might have waited for many more years before it could be published.

It is our belief that this book will be a fitting complement to the many books on local histories in Alberta already published in areas settled by Ukrainians and, furthermore, we feel certain that it will remain a source of reference for future scholars of immigration and settlement.

Foreword

The Dictionary of Ukrainian Canadian Biography, Pioneer Settlers of Manitoba 1891-1900 is indeed fortunate to have as its compiler and editor Dr. Vladimir J. Kaye. Dr. Kaye has, of course, already established himself in the study of the Ukrainian pioneers of Canada with his Early Ukrainian Settlements in Canada, 1895-1900, published in 1964. Of distinguished Ukrainian origin himself, he brings to Ukrainian history in Canada that intimate understanding and personal devotion without which much of the exacting work of the history of settlement would not be done. A scholar himself, he unites in his person European scholarship, friendship with Canadian scholars such as the late W. J. Rose and George W. Simpson, and a career since 1928 in Canada spent in the study of Ukrainian pioneers.

Canada itself is fortunate that in 1941 Dr. Kaye became a member with Dr. Simpson of a special information branch of the Department of National War Services to promote co-operation with Canadians of recent European origin. That wartime measure had its own limited purposes, but it was to become in 1950 part of the new Department of Citizenship and Immigration. In both Dr. Kaye acted as liaison officer with ethnic groups and their press. Dr. Kaye's extensive knowledge of European languages and of the historical background of Canadians of European origin made him an active and a creative force in the Department's work, and in the formation of a new attitude in government and public to newcomers who were committing their lives and fortunes to Canada. We see in his work, as part of other influences, the growing concept of Canadian citizenship and nationality as an integration of people of diverse origins and cultures in one co-operative enterprise based on mutual respect and on a growing knowledge of one another.

In the Dictionary Dr. Kaye carries his work to its ultimate conclusion, the assembly in orderly form of what details may be recovered of the facts of place of birth, date of migration, place of settlement, marriage, children, and time of death of each Ukrainian pioneer, in this volume, of Manitoba. The task is one of extraordinary devotion, unequalled, so far as the writer's knowledge goes, in the history of any other group of Canadians except the French. Henceforth Dr. Kaye's name will be linked with that of Dr. Cyprien Tanguay and his Dictionnaire genealogique des familles canadiennes in seven volumes. That French and Ukrainian Canadians should produce such monumental records of every possible member of their people is at once a symbol of and a tribute to the cohesiveness of their group and their pride in their origins and cultures.

The reader will be impressed, however, not only with the monumental character of Dr. Kaye's work, and its utility as a tool for future research, but also by the extreme difficulty of the task he has carried forward thus far. It is not so much that records are lacking; indeed one is surprised at the number and systematic character of birth certificates, steamship pursers' notes and records of naturalization. The main source of difficulty lies in the mutilation and misspelling of Ukrainian names by the officials who wrote them down in the first place. A Canadian of English origin in all honesty must feel a certain sympathy with people of no scholarly pretensions and no familiarity with Slavonic languages and phonology. Even so, one detects an impatience with strange-sounding names which is all too revealing of the bleak welcome many immigrants in fact received. From this lack of understanding came changes in the spelling of names, sometimes complete changes of name, and even one imagines, in complete weariness the adoption of English names or English forms of Ukrainian names. In addition there were the difficulties of tracing the lives of settlers in new districts imperfectly supplied with local services and often without a local newspaper in the early years. Nor were the obituary notes, when the time came for them, always as full, specific, or even as correct, as the Dictionary required.

A record has been compiled, however, remarkably full in the circumstances and capable, as all living works are, of being corrected and amplified. Indeed, it will challenge both correction and addition from its users. For the meaning of such a Dictionary is that is a living, and therefore an ongoing, record of the times of people who live on in their descendants. The central part of that meaning is that in this Dictionary is a noble, if incomplete, portion of the record of people who by their endeavours and the resilience of their spirit created Canada.

The French and the English may, with some justice, claim to be founding peoples, in that they did establish the official languages and the legal and political institutions of Canada. That, however, was an accident of the time of their immigration here. Other languages and other institutions would have served as well. Canada has been and will be the creation of all its people of whom those tabulated here were not the least.

Introduction

The biographies contained in the Dictionary of Ukrainian Canadian Biography are not intended to serve as a record of activities of the persons concerned, but are intended to offer material for further sociological, demographic, statistical and genealogical studies on Ukrainian agricultural settlers who entered Canada during the first phase of immigration from 1891-1900.

It has been observed in the course of the research that there existed even then in contemporary documentary records discrepancies in the dates of birth, names of places of origin, the ages given and in the spelling of names. These discrepancies often created confusion, particularly, when a number of persons with identical names were encountered, with no means of identification.

The spelling of names has been retained as found in the various documents and in obituary notices published in the local press; the present spelling of the names were added when available, this was not always possible as very often members of one and the same family adopted different ways of spelling their names.

An attempt has been made to include in the biographies as much as possible, the names of places of origin for further demographic studies. In the course of the researches it was found that about ninety per cent of the settlers of the period dealt with in the dictionary originated from a very distinct region; the basin of the middle Dnister and middle Pruth rivers in the south-eastern part of the province of Galicia and the adjoining part of the province of Bukovina in the former Austrian Empire. The center of this region consisted of the districts of Borshchiv and Zolishchyky in Galicia and the districts of Zastavna and Kitsman in Bukovina. Archeological researches and recent excavations conducted in this region have revealed the basin to be the western centre of the neolithic Trypilian (Tripolye) culture. Excavations made in the villages from where the bulk of the early Ukrainian settlers originated, i.e. in the districts of Borshchiv, Zolishchyky, Zastavna and Kitsman, have produced rich finds of ancient potsherds, domestic utensils, but, above all, a proof of agricultural settlement and agricultural activities at a time when other inhabitants of neolithic Europe were still nomadic. The inhabitants of these neolithic settlements "lived in well constructed houses, not known in other parts of Europe."¹ They grew wheat, barley, rye and millet, stored grain in pits, raised cattle, sheep and goats, pigs and geese.²

Basing their theory on recent discoveries, archeologists believe that the beginning of the Trypilian culture may go as far back as 5,000 B.C. Archeologists have made another observation. The beautifully painted ceramics, potsherds of the Trypillian culture found in the middle Dnister and middle Pruth basin display colorings and motifs of ornaments very similar to those used in the same districts today in embroideries, kilims, Easter egg designs and potteries.³ Whether there exists a connection between the original neolithic agriculturists of that region and the later peasant population is now being studied by archeologists and anthropologists, but the fact remains that the settlers who came to Canada from that ancient agricultural region were imbued with a deep attachment to the soil.

Dr. John Panchuk of Michigan, Dr. Anthony T. Wachna of Windsor, Ontario and Prof. Octavia Hall of the University of Texas, descendants of the first Ukrainian pioneer settlers in Canada, were very kind in following untiringly the progress of researches and adding valuable biographical data on pioneer settlers needed for the Dictionary.

The generous grant, which the Canada Council extended, made the completion of the researches, which covered seven years, possible. I am greatly indebted for this assistance.

My sincere thanks go also to my wife Grace for her encouragement and technical help in the preparation of the draft, and to my daughter Olena (Ph.D.) for her assistance in field work and in the assembly of material.

Editorial Notes

Involuntary and Voluntary Changes of Personal Names

Discrepancies in the spelling of names encountered in various sources increased considerably the difficulty of research in the preparation of the Dictionary. Original documents, such as birth certificates or passports, were available only in rare cases and those which were consulted served to check the data on passenger lists, the main source of information used to establish the year of birth and the age of the immigrants.

The study revealed that the spellings of names of presumably the same persons differed in sources consulted; therefore a very careful examination of the identity of persons had to be made. As time progressed, modifications of the spelling of names were also observed and noted.

The changes in the spelling of names were of two different kinds: Involuntary Changes caused by outside factors. They were mostly faulty spellings and distortions of names, contained in boat registers and later in naturalization records. Voluntary Changes initiated by the owners of the names themselves.

Involuntary Changes

Involuntary changes of names were found mainly on boat registers at the time of arrival of immigrants in Canada and a few years later on naturalization documents. It would be more appropriate to list them simply as misspellings and distortions of names.

Boat lists were prepared by pursers often in barely readable handwriting and in a variety of spellings. When the names were copied from passports (not generally required for admission to Canada), the given names often bore the Polish form of spelling, such as Jendrzzej instead of Andrij, Bazyli instead of Wasyl, Jan instead of Ivan, etc. and they were written in Polish orthography, "sz" for sh, "cz" for ch, "j" for y, etc.

Misspellings of names occurred most frequently when they were copied from lists prepared by steamship agents, or recorded by pursers on oral enquiries. The most fantastic distortions were found on boatlists prepared by pursers of English steamship lines not familiar with the Slavonic way of writing.

Such given names as Salami, Vaseline, Gravelli, are easily identifiable, but names like Fachgema, Daska, Jefta, Libeltona, Atha, defy identification.

It required diligent searches to identify the bearers of such names as Skakosfarski Miekalof (Szpaczynski, Mykolaj), Mryasah Wawisouts (Hrycak, Vavro), or Kokolyson Andrey (Nykolyshyn, Andrey) S.S. LABRADOR, Liverpool, landing at Halifax 21 Feb. 1897).

The spelling of names on applications for naturalization, on naturalization certificates, on sworn affidavits also showed a surprisingly high number of misspellings and distortions of names, although one would have expected that on official documents with the signature of the judge, or witnesses and interpreters, the names of applicants would be correctly spelled. This was not always the case, particularly during the first years of Ukrainian immigration. To give some examples of such misspellings which occurred during 1903-1905 on certificates of naturalization: Wasyl Zyrynz (Spr. Crt. N.W.T., Edmonton, No. 3691, 2 Nov. 1904) — true name: Wasyl Yaremiy; Peter Poilcoit (Supr. Crt. N.W.T. Edmonton, No. 3666, 26 Oct. 1904) — true name: Peter Palcat; Parfree Cachook (Supr. Crt. N.W.T. Edmonton, No. 72, 8 Feb. 1905) — true name: Porfiry Tkachuk; John Cockataille (Supr. Crt. N.W.T. Moosomin, 8 March 1904) — true name: Ivan Kokotailo; Canguk Nykibckiu (Supr. Crt. N.W.T., Edmonton, 30 June, 1903) — true name: Sandyk Zukiwskyi, who signed his name in Cyrillic letters and the clerk of the court copied the signature verbatim.

Sometimes the names were misspelled even in spite of the presence of the applicant's own signature on the very same document: Jakow Matjczuk signed the sworn affidavit on one page and on the other page the clerk of the court spelled his name Jakew Matyszuk (Supr. Crt. N.W.T. Edmonton, 24 Feb. 1904). Jakub Kosiejski signed his name and the clerk of the court spelled it Jacob Kosniski, etc.

To a great extent the court interpreters were also responsible for the distortions of these names. Their task was to prepare the affidavits for the signature of the applicant. If he could not write his name, he signed with the cross and the name was written by the interpreter. Early court interpreters were mostly German colonists from Galicia who had come to Canada a few years earlier, who had acquired a knowledge of the English language and who spoke passable Ukrainian. Improvements in the preparation of naturalization documents appear in 1904 and after, when better qualified interpreters entered the field. In the North West Territories one of the first interpreters of Ukrainian origin was Theodore Nemirsky of Wostok, Alberta, who was also Commissioner of Oaths, the first postmaster of Wostok P.O. and Land Guide. Meticulous in the preparation of documents he insisted that proper names be spelled the way they were recorded in baptismal certificates. As baptismal certificates in Galicia were often written in Latin, Nemirsky reproduced the names on applications for naturalization also in Latin form, such as Demetrius (Cybulak, Applic. No. 2709, Pakan, Alta, 6 June, 1904); Maximus (Chmelyk, Applic. No. 2943, Krakow, Alta., 10 Aug. 1904); Romanus (Nykilchuk, Beaver Lake, Alta., Applic. No. 3027, 10 Aug. 1904), etc. These modifications of given names, as signatures testify, were made with full approval of the owners.

After 1904 we encounter a number of young interpreters, mostly sons and daughters of the pioneer settlers, who attended local schools and did interpreting when the necessity arose. Some of them, like Michael Gowda or John Kilar, on completion of their education became court interpreters in Edmonton. Among occasional interpreters we encounter on naturalization documents, were: Mike Bryks, Jasko Bryks, John Konik, Mary Batan, John Fylypchook, James Maga, Gregory, Alex and Mary Moisey, and Mary Stewart, probably of Ukrainian origin, wife of Robert Stewart, Commissioner of Oaths.

Voluntary Changes

Voluntary changes of the spelling of names began a few years after the arrival in Canada. Anglicization of given names appeared usually when the homesteader went to work for an English farmer as a hired man, or became a laborer on the railway construction gang. For the foreman of the gang it was more convenient to call Ivan John, or Mykhailo Mike. Some of these early changes encountered on naturalization records are written phonologically and not orthographically (Dzian Michaluk, Dzian Bobyk, Majk Chabun, Majk Namaka — 1903, Stieff Olczeszyn — 1904). The study of some four thousand naturalization records of the year 1904 showed that most of the rural applicants retained their original given names. It showed also that orthographical changes in the spelling of surnames became frequent, replacing the continental “sz” with the English sh, “cz” with ch, “j” with y, Baschak instead of Baszczak, Kinaschuk instead of Kinaszczuk, Yakiwchuk instead of Jakiwczuk; names ending with -cki were spelled -tski, or -tzki, Chemetski instead of Czernecki, Stryletzki instead of Strylecki, etc. As the owners of these names were not familiar with the rules of onomastics, the changes in spellings differed considerably, although in Ukrainian the names remained unchanged. The changes made by the original settlers were seldom registered officially. Metro Bilowus (b. 1879, d. 1952) spelled his name Bilous, but his descendants made further modifications in the spelling of the name, such as Bellows, Belous, and registered them officially.

The original settlers, as already mentioned, in most cases retained their given names unchanged, and were thus mentioned in the obituary notices in the English local press: Yakiw Myskiw (b. 1818, d. 1918), Nastia Tycholis (b. 1849, d. 1934), Dokya Pakaluk (b. 1865, d. 1934), etc. There were some exceptions though. In some cases when children or grandchildren of the deceased person wrote obituary notices, they gave their grandmothers English names, “Mrs. Molly Mymko, aged 81, died 23 November 1953 in her home in Valley River . . .” or “Mrs. Molly Plawa was born in Kryvche, Austria . . .”,

"Mrs. Doris Kukurudz died aged 85 . . ." To establish the true name of the deceased, obituary notices in the Ukrainian press or church records had to be consulted. They invariably showed the current calendar names, as registered in baptismal certificates, such as Paraskevia or Pulcheria instead of Pearl in the English obituary, Anastasia instead of Nettie or Nellie, Tatiana instead of Teena or Tillie, etc.

One interesting observation was made when studying naturalization records and obituary notices in the press. The spelling of the names of Polish settlers of the same period remained in most cases unchanged, in spite of the fact that their pronunciation in English did not reproduce the name phonologically. Examples: Martin Modrzejewski (b. 1845, d. 1929), Anton Tchorzewski (b. 1851, d. 1938), Mike Czastkiewicz (b. 1856, d. 1934), Julian Charzewski (b. 1866, d. 1935).

Some of the Polish families who settled in Ukrainian districts followed the Ukrainian custom and changed the spelling of their names to adapt them phonologically. Thus Jan Szczygelski on the sailing list, who settled in a Ukrainian district in southern Manitoba, is recorded as John Schygelski on the naturalization document of 1902; the name of Julian Rzesniowski, who settled in the Dauphin district in 1897, was spelled Julian Reznoski in the obituary notice.

Structural changes and additions of second given names began to appear later. They were mostly used by the sons of the original settlers. The second name (only in English) was in most cases the English version of the given name of the father. Patronymics, common in Eastern (former Russian) Ukraine were unknown in Western (former Austrian) Ukraine, from where the majority of settlers came; therefore, as a rule, only one given name was used. Only in cases when two persons with the same name lived in a village, a patronymic was added "Nicholas son of Ivan" or whoever he may be (Genik, Nykola Ivaniv, born 1857, died 1953 in Venlaw, Man. — Genik, Nykola, son of Ivan).

In studying obituary notices of pioneer settlers in the English newspapers it was observed that while the names of the pioneer settlers were given in their original Ukrainian form, Protz, Paraska, Dokia, Metro, Wasyl, Ivan, Tymko, or in the accepted equivalent English form of Ukrainian names, William (for Wasyl), John (for Ivan), Fred (for Fedir), Harry (for Hryc), the names of children in the "Birth Announcements" column of the same issue of papers bore names like: Patricia Angela, Walter Elwyn, Linda Carol, Morley Neil, Judy Lynn, Dwight Edwin, Martin Ross, Verna Theresa, Brant Eddie, Shirley May, Obrien, Gwynneth J. (names taken from Dauphin Herald announcements).

Baptismal records (Libera Natorum) of Ukrainian parishes revealed that all children were given at the baptismal the accepted calendar saints names with only occasional additions of an English name. Many of those calendar names were later used in Anglicized form by the bearers: Myroslav became Morris or Marshall, Stanislas became Stanley, Dokia became Doris, Demko became Duncan, etc.

In the social column of Ukrainian newspapers, on the other hand, when names of participants in various events were given, the accepted English forms of names (in Cyrillic transcription) appeared: Shirley Elko, Lucille Korpan, Patricia Soroka, Maxine Hrabetz, Lunn Melnyk, etc.

In the post-World War Two era, with the entry to Canada of thousands of intellectual immigrants from all parts of Europe, there sprang up among native Canadians an interest in Slavic names. This became noticeable with the Ukrainian group as well, with the gradual acceptance of old traditional Slavic names, such as Nadia, Vera, Olena, Hanka, Tatiana, Olga, Ivan, Taras, in English transcription.

Problems Connected with the Preparation of Biographical Material

The title Dictionary may be too broad a designation. It is intended to present essential factual material to serve as the basis for further sociological, demographic, statistical and historical studies on the Ukrainian ethnic group in Canada.

The contents of the Dictionary are based almost entirely on material obtained from various documentary sources. To have a definite base for the planned study, homestead entries made by Ukrainian pioneer settlers have been selected to form the basis of the Dictionary, beginning with the first name encountered and ending with December 31st, 1899, although, a few names of those who made previous cancellations and filed re-entries at the beginning of 1900 have also been included in the Dictionary.

The choice of the Homestead Grant Register to form the basis was made chiefly for the following reasons: (1) it embraced the majority of the first phase of Ukrainian pioneer settlers, the founders of the numerous colonies most of which bear Ukrainian names; (2) it contained the most reliable information as to the date and place of their settlement; (3) it showed a surprisingly accurate spelling of names in comparison with other documentary sources, which was a considerable assistance in the establishment of the identity of the settlers.

To the extent possible, a list of all of the homestead applicants of Ukrainian origin, beginning with the first entry encountered to those made up to December 31, 1899, was made. In all, 18 volumes of the Homestead Grant Register, covering the years 1872-1900 comprising 81,753 entries were studied and 2,086 names believed to be of Ukrainian settlers, with relevant information, were entered on cards. The homestead records contained such information as the date of application, its number (for eventual further research purposes); the name of the applicant; the legal description of the homestead; the district and listing numbers; whether the homestead was cancelled or retained and whether a patent of ownership was issued.

After a thorough scrutiny of the 2,086 names, some 140 proved to be re-entries after previous cancellations, and another thirty odd were believed to be settlers of non-Ukrainian origin.

To obtain additional biographical data on the settlers, the following sources were studied: (1) the passenger lists of boats landing in the ports of Quebec and Halifax; (2) the naturalization records; (3) the Cummins Rural Directory Maps of 1922 and 1923; Municipal District Maps; (4) the contemporary English and Ukrainian-language newspapers; (5) provincial archives, hospital, parish and cathedral records.

To establish the dates of arrival in Canada, the years of birth (ages) of the settlers, the names of the spouses and children and their ages, places of origin and destination, passenger lists of boats landing in the ports of Quebec and Halifax were studied. During the decade 1890-1900, 780 passenger boats entered the Port of Quebec alone; twice as many entered the Port of Halifax, which was open for navigation the year around. Approximately 282,000 names of passengers were studied and 12,316 names of Ukrainian settlers copied including the information contained on the passenger lists. Subsequently an index of names was drawn up for the preparation of biographies.

A comparison of the names contained on homestead records with the lists of names assembled from boat registers showed certain discrepancies. A number of names contained on boat lists were missing from the homestead records and vice versa. The identification of the names also became a problem. In the majority of cases the spelling of the names on boat lists differed from the spelling of the names on the homestead records, mostly due to faulty spelling by boat pursers. Where the identification was doubtful, the information from boat lists was not entered in index cards.

Some discrepancies between the homestead and boat lists arose due to immigrants landing at the Port of New York and entering Canada by rail. They were not registered the same way as those entering Canada through the Ports of Quebec or Halifax. Official registration of these immigrants was not introduced until 1908, and such important information as the age, marital status, names of wife, and children, was missing. Some information was subsequently collected from obituary notices, death records of parishes, hospitals and other sources, although it is still incomplete in a number of cases.

A certain number of names found on passenger lists were not on the homestead records. One of the most common reasons was that a number of early arrivals settled as 'squatters' on land not released for homesteads, such as timber reserves, swamp lands, government sections, land owned by the railway companies, or abandoned homesteads previously pre-empted with small down-payments but never occupied. After years of illegal occupation of the land on which they settled, and after numerous appeals, they were given permission by Order-in-Council to make homestead entries and to obtain legal rights of ownership. These entries were made after 1900 and subsequently the names of entrants are not included in the Dictionary.

Not all immigrants desiring to settle on land were able to do so immediately on their arrival. Those who arrived in Canada without means had to produce the necessary funds to start farming by working as farm labourers, herdsman, laborers in cities and on railway extra-gangs. The names of those who came to Canada before 1900, but made homestead entries after that date, are not included in the Dictionary.

Naturalization records supplied further important biographical information on the settlers. Applications for naturalization were usually made by homesteaders when required conditions were fulfilled, at least three years after the entry, to obtain patents of ownership for the land. Applications for naturalization contained detailed information about the progress made on the homestead, acres broken and seeded each year, the number of livestock, condition and value of buildings, etc. The Dictionary extracts only the essential information contained in the Patent, such as the name of the applicant (as it was spelled after three or more years of residence in Canada); the name and place of the settlement; occupation; the name of the former place of settlement; the date of granting naturalization and the name and place of the court.

Approximately 150,000 naturalization records were studied, beginning with 1890 and ending approximately with 1905, and information referring to applicants of Ukrainian origin was entered on index cards. The comparison of names on homestead records with the names on naturalization records showed in many cases a discrepancy in the spelling of names, frequently due to the high number of errors committed by the clerks of the courts. Naturalization records showed also the emergence of new settlements and their names.

To obtain the picture of mobility of the settlers, a study of the Cummins Rural Directory Maps of the years 1922 and 1923 and of Municipal District Maps of later years was made and findings registered in the Dictionary. The Cummins Rural Directory Maps gave the names of the occupant of the particular section, as it was spelled in 1922 or 1923, and the name of the post office which generally coincided with the name of the settlement. This was particularly important as it showed the establishment and growth of new communities. The name of the occupants gave an indication whether the original settler was still alive or whether the homestead was occupied either by one of his sons or by somebody else, which suggests the abandonment of the original homestead for some other place of settlement.

The most difficult facts to obtain were the dates of birth and death of the settler and his spouse, the name of the village, district, and province from where the settler originated, and the names, occupations and places of residence of the children of the pioneer settlers. The main sources of this information were the obituary notices in the Ukrainian and English language newspapers, which are extensively quoted. Less reliable but equally valuable were various memoirs published in book form, in almanacs or in serial form in the press. They supplied the background material for the biographies but their data were not always reliable.

Death records kept by hospitals, such as Winnipeg General Hospital, St.

Boniface Hospital, or Dauphin General Hospital, contained in most cases meager information on the deceased rural patient's place of residence, date and place of birth, or even age. More information was contained in the brief obituary notices put in the daily press by funeral homes in charge of interments. They contained as a rule also the names of surviving next of kin, their places of residence and the names of other relatives and friends attending the funeral.

By far the most valuable information for biographical purposes was to be found in the local press. A thorough and detailed study of the local press was made, and information on pioneer settlers copied, verified and entered on index cards. Obituaries in the Ukrainian and English press began to appear more regularly in 1920. Before that date only occasionally was a report about somebody's death published. In the early pioneer days rural correspondents did not exist and the homesteaders, even if they could read and write, often lacked pen and ink and the post offices were miles away. Only when economic conditions improved, the children of the pioneer settlers attending schools reached the age of discretion, regular parishes were established, did obituary notices begin to appear in the local press. The most precise obituaries were written by officiating Catholic, Orthodox and Protestant clergymen. These obituary notices were, as a rule, based on information supplied by the next of kin of the deceased person and on church records contained in parish books. Such obituary notices were published predominantly in the Ukrainian-language press serving the particular denominational group. The semi-monthly Vistnyk/Herald and the weedy Ukrainskyi Holos/Ukrainian Voice published obituaries of persons belonging mostly to the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church; the monthlies Svitlo/The Light, Holos Spasytela/ Redeemer's Voice weeklies Ukrainski Visti/Ukrainian News, Postup/Progress or Nasha Meta/ Our Aim published obituaries of persons belonging predominantly to the Ukrainian Catholic Church; the weekly Kanadiyskyi Ranok/Canadian Dawn, Evanhelska Pravda/Evangelical Truth, monthly, published obituaries of persons of Evangelical denominations. Obituaries found in other Ukrainian newspapers, such as Kanadiyskyi Farmer/Canadian Farmer, weekly, Winnipeg, Novyi Shliakh/New Pathway, semi-weekly, Winnipeg, Vilne Slovo/Free Word, weekly, Toronto, with no religious affiliations, were written by local correspondents, relatives of the deceased persons or by friends. These often lacked essential biographical data.

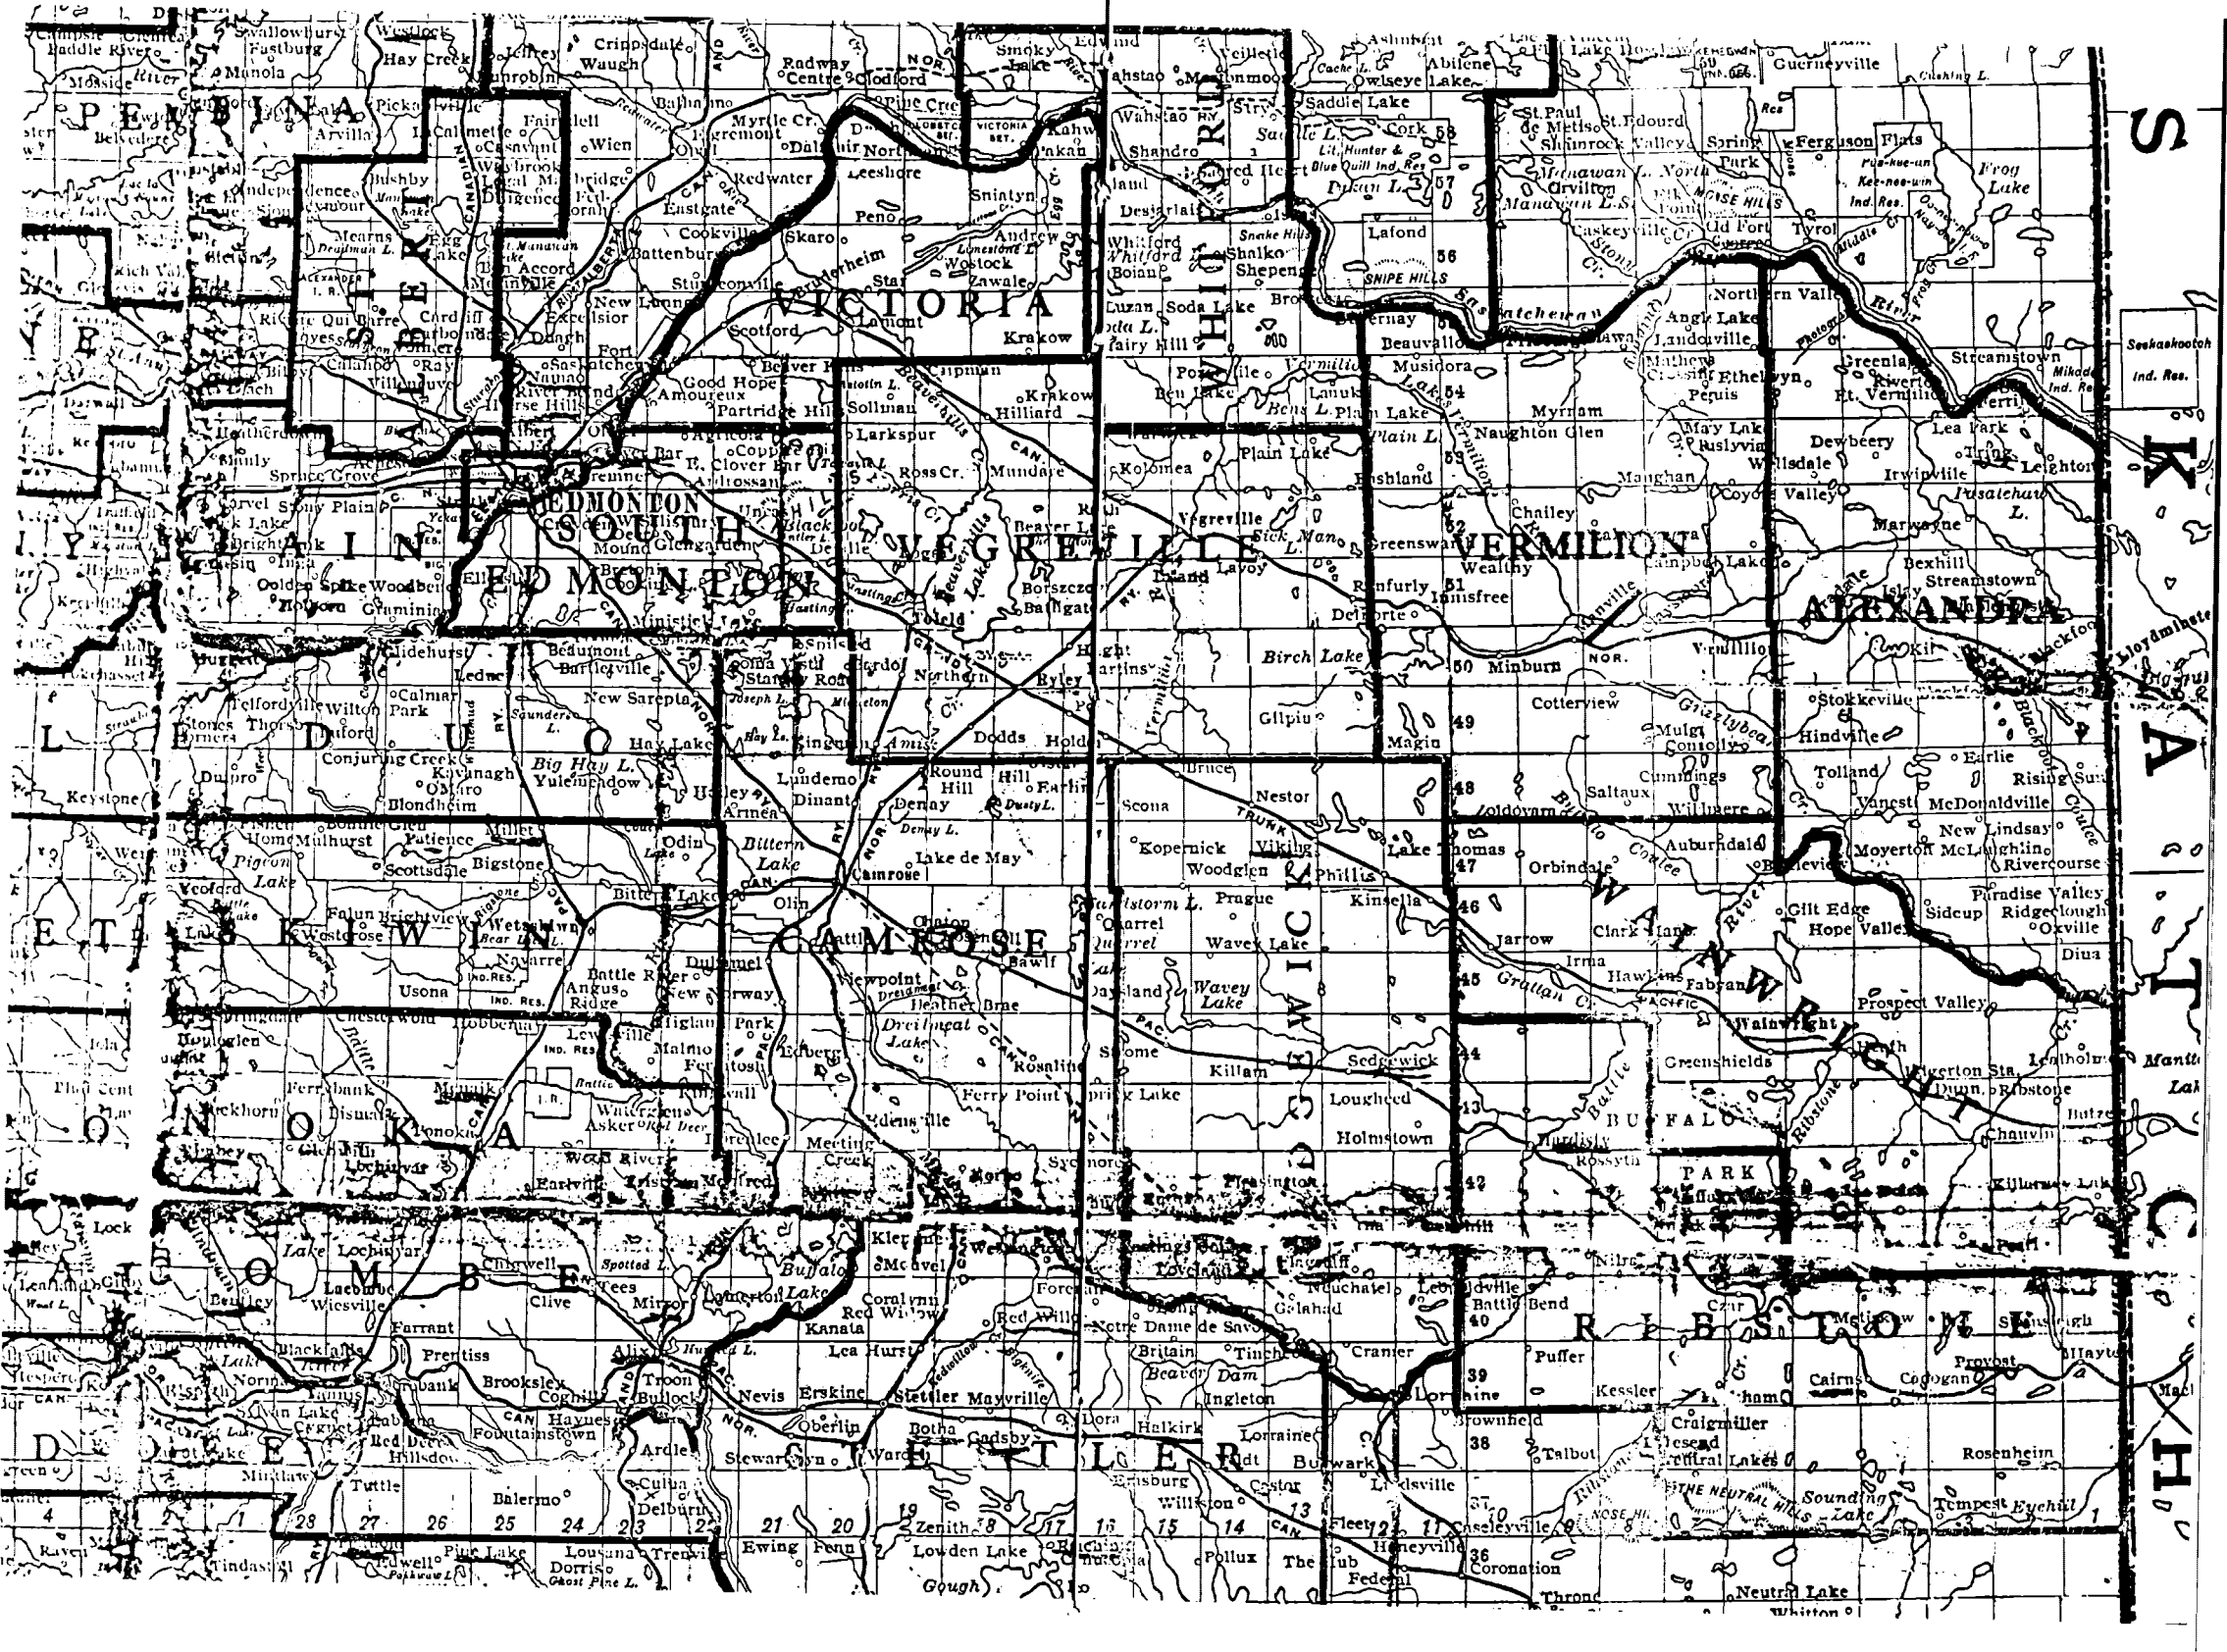

Obituaries published in the Ukrainian newspapers contained information often lacking in the English newspapers, such as the names of the villages and districts from where the settlers originated and the given names of the surviving married daughters. Not all obituary notices, even in the religious newspapers, were written by the officiating clergymen. They were also written by relatives and friends. A general survey of all notices published in the Ukrainian press revealed that a considerable number of them contained minor errors. Such as, for example, "Ivan Sirman died 11 December 1966 . . . he was born in Kalish and came to Canada with his parents in 1894 . . .” (Canadian Farmer, 28 January 1967). A comparison with the sailing records showed that Ivan’s parents arrived in Canada 24 June 1897, and not 1894, and he was not born in Kalish but in Kalush. Such minor discrepancies are easily corrected. But if the obituary notice lacks basic biographical information on the deceased person, its value diminishes for the biographer. “(Stach Nahayovsky), one of the oldest pioneer settlers of the district (Hilliard, Alta.) died after a short illness in the Mundare hospital. The deceased was mourned by his daughter Rosalia, four sons . . . 21 grandchildren, 3 great-grandchildren, and one brother John . . .” (Svitlo/The Light, Jan. 1967). The date of death, the name of (probably deceased) wife, and other biographical data are missing.

If the maiden name of a daughter who married after her arrival in Canada is not given, it is difficult to trace further biographical particulars. “Palahna Holuk died in Rosthern, Sask. 21 April 1962 aged 76 . . . Mrs. Holuk was born in the village of Lanivci, Ukraine, and came to Canada with her parents in 1898 who settled in Rosthern district in Saskatchewan. She married Wasyl Holuk in 1901 . . .” (Canadian Farmer, 24 Sept. 1962). As her maiden name is missing, it is impossible to consult the sailing records to find out when the family arrived, on which boat, the names of parents, brothers, and sisters. General death notices without the definite date of death and other particulars are of limited biographical value. Pioneer Theodor Bilyi died in Edward, Alberta. He lived to be 94 years. Surviving four sons, five daughters, 31 grandchildren and 37 great-grandchildren . . .” (Canadian Farmer, 12 Dec. 1960). If the notice had been published in January or February, even the year of death would have been in doubt.

Of the English-language newspapers, the Dauphin Herald weekly contained the most accurate obituary notices of Ukrainian pioneer settlers. Although they began to arrive in the Dauphin district as early as 1896-97, during the first two decades following their settlement only few notices are found in the local press. Obituary notices began to appear more frequently only after 1920.

Early obituary notices were often brief and not always comprehensible to the outside readers. They appeared among other reports of various happenings in the particular communities and were not printed in a separate obituary column. Most of the later obituaries were well edited and contained full biographical information about the deceased, including the history of his (or her) settlement, the names of all surviving children and other information. These obituaries were written by experienced local reporters, who meticulously collected all available information. During the decade 1940-50 regular obituary notices appeared from many communities in the Dauphin region. The names of married daughters of the deceased pioneers were published with the initials or given names of the husbands, for example: “Mrs. Julia Kaczkowski (Melyk) died aged 78 in Dauphin general hospital 24 March 1949 and was survived . . . by two daughters, Mrs. Nick Litowitz and Mrs. William Swerbyus of Sifton, Manitoba . . .” (Dauphin Herald 29 March 1949). Locally probably everybody knew which daughter was Mrs. John Litowitz and which was Mrs. William Swerbyus, but to an outside person it was a puzzle. Sailing records state that Wasyl and Julia Kaczkowsky had two daughters, Pazia and Anna. Which one was Mrs. Litowitz and which was Mrs. Swerbyus? Beginning in 1956 the given names of the surviving married daughters were added in brackets, such as “Wasyl Sydor, aged 85, died . . . and was survived by four daughters, Mrs. C. Perth (Mary) of Dauphin, Mrs. M. Homeniuk (Kassie) Mrs. P. Tobak (Ann) of Gilbert Plains, and Mrs. F. Kindret (Pearl) of Winnipeg . . .”. (Dauphin Herald 16 January 1958).

The Stuartburn region of Manitoba was covered by reports contributed regularly by local correspondents and published in the Carillon News weekly of Steinbach, Manitoba. Some of the death notices were very brief and destined only for the local community. “Sincere sympathies of the community are extended to the Paciorka family and other relatives in their bereavement on the loss of mother and sister.” (Carillon News, 18 Nov. 1955).

Difficult problems of identification arose when several homestead applicants with identical names were encountered. It required lengthy efforts to establish their identity: Two Ivan Borys’ arrived in Canada in 1897 and settled on homesteads in Alberta. One (wife Anna), was born in 1857, arrived March 1897. The other Ivan (wife Anna), born 1842, arrived December 1897. One Ivan Borys settled on a homestead in Edna district, the other in Leduc district. Which Ivan Borys settled in Edna, and which in Leduc? Sailing records were consulted which disclosed that Ivan Borys born in 1842 had a 22-year old son, Semen, who applied and obtained a homestead in the Leduc district; the adjoining quarter section was registered in the name of Ivan Borys, obviously his father, born in 1842. The identity was established.

Frequent changes of places of residence also impeded the assembly of biographical information. The task was made still more difficult if the changes of places of residence were accompanied by a change in the spelling of the name. An example: The S.S. NUMIDIAN, landing at Quebec 13 June 1892 listed an immigrant by the name of Michael Romanik aged 32 years. Two weeks later the Homestead Grant Register listed an application for homestead entered by a Michael Romaniak, in the Edna, Alberta district. Michael Romaniak cancelled his homestead and his name disappears from the lists. In 1897 a Michael Romanyk filed an application for homestead in the Stuartburn district in Manitoba, which he cancelled the same year. On 26 April 1898 there appeared an entry for a homestead in Edna, Alberta, under the name of Michael Romanick. Was Michael Romanik, Romaniak, Romanyk, Romanick, one and the same person, or were there four different persons? The question was answered by Michael Romaniuk’s son (proper spelling of the name) Ivan who in his memoirs described the family’s wanderings from one province to another and their final settlement in the Edna district in Alberta.

Where available, short biographies of the children were added to the general biographies of the pioneer settlers to show their mobility and to indicate the progress in the integration of the group into Canadian society.

Biographies Dictionary of Ukrainian Canadian Biography The Pioneer Settlers of Alberta 1891-1900

The brief biographies of the pioneer settlers are based almost entirely on documentary sources. Homestead entries made by Ukrainian pioneer settlers form the basis of the Dictionary. They begin with the first entry encountered in 1892 (Michael Romaniuk, Application filed 27 June 1892 — SE-12-55-22-W.4.M.) and end January 1st, 1900, although a few names of those who made cancellations and filed re-entries after January 1900 have also been included.

The Homestead Grant Register listings contain the numbers of volumes, entries, the dates and numbers of applications and districts, to enable future researchers to consult the original documents containing full description of the homesteads and applicants.

To obtain additional biographical data on the settlers, the following sources were consulted: 1) passenger lists of boats landing in the ports of Quebec and Halifax; 2) Naturalization Records; 3) contemporary English and Ukrainian language newspapers; 4) parish, church records, including St. Josaphat's Cathedral in Edmonton; 5) the Archives of Basilian Fathers in Mundare; 6) Parliamentary Library of Alberta; and 7) Provincial Archives.

The study of Homestead Records in the Public Archives of Canada in Ottawa covered the years 1872-1900, 18 volumes containing 81,753 names of applicants; the names of Ukrainian applicants were listed on index cards. Passenger Lists of boats landing at the ports of Quebec and Halifax were studied beginning 1865 to 1900 and the names of Ukrainian immigrants entered on index cards. Approximately 282,000 names were studied and 11,560 Ukrainian names noted.

Not all Ukrainian immigrants of that early period did settle on homesteads immediately on their arrival in Canada. Those who arrived without sufficient funds, to procure the needed money to start farming, worked a certain period of time as laborers, herdsmen, railway construction workers and filed homestead entries several year after 1900. Their names are not included in the Dictionary which ends with the year 1900.

Naturalization Records supply further biographical information. Applications for naturalization were usually made by occupants of homesteads in order to obtain the patent of ownership. They were required to reside on their homestead three years before an application for ownership could be made. Naturalization Records contained detailed information about the progress the occupant made, how many acres of land have been broken and seeded, the number of livestock, conditions and value of buildings, etc. In the Dictionary are listed only the name of the applicant, the date of granting naturalization, the name and place of the court, the name and description of place of settlement, occupation and the name of former place of residence. The date of naturalization and the name of court enable the researches to consult the documents in the Provincial Archives or in the archives of the Canadian Citizenship Registration Branch in Ottawa. Approximately 150,000 naturalization records have been studied, beginning with the year 1890 and ending approx. with the year 1905. Names of Ukrainian recipients were entered on index cards.

Cummins Rural Directory Maps 1922-1923 (CRDM) quoted in the Dictionary supplied the names of occupants of the particular quarter sections in 1922 and 1923 indicating whether the quarter section was occupied by the original settler or by some other person; it gave the name of the Post Office of each quarter section, as it was called in 1922-1923.

Press Media supplied such valuable information as obituary notices, memoirs of pioneers and various announcements. The most correct obituary notices were written by the officiating clergy. They were, as a rule, based on documentary material contained in church records.

He was married 18 November 1893 to Maria, daughter of Nicephor Chekaluk and Anna Fodchuk and settled on farm to start life. When children arrived, they decided that their modest possessions would not suffice to endow their sons and daughters when they reach marital age, and therefore, they decided to emigrate to Canada, to follow the families who had emigrated to Canada from their village and district a year before and had written encouraging letters to their relatives and friends. They sold their farm and in the early spring of 1898 embarked on S.S. BULGARIA for Canada. They landed at Halifax on April 24 and without delay proceeded to Alberta to join their fellow villagers farming on homesteads north of Edmonton. They settled on NW-28-57-16-W.4.M., Star Alberta, and farmed successfully many years and when time of retirement approached, Dmytro Decore passed his farm to his son Nicholas who already was farming on the adjoining quarter section. Son Nicholas born 1884 in Zaluche, came to Canada with his parents, married Hafia Kostiuik a farmer's daughter of Sniatyn, Alta. and settled on homestead. Particularly interested in giving his children proper education he sent them to local public school and encouraged them to continue their education. In 1954 the family gave up farming and returned to live in the village of Andrew, Alta. He taught public and high school for three years before graduating from the University of Alberta in 1937 with a B.A. degree and in 1938 obtained his LL.B. degree. He became a barrister and solicitor, opened an office in Vegreville and later in Edmonton. September 22, 1934 married Myrosia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kupchenko of Edmonton. Elected President of Vegreville Board of Trade in 1947; President of Kinsmen's Club, Vegreville, 1944; School Trustee of Vegreville School Board, 1943-1949; in 1949 elected member of the House of Commons (Liberal) from the Vegreville Constituency, re-elected 1953, served until 1957. Ivan son of Wasył Eleniak, born 10 November 1894 in Gretna, Manitoba, married 1918 Anna Boyko, born 15 October 1898 in Peno-Star, Alta. They settled on farm in Chipman and the 1960's moved to reside in Edmonton. Ivan and Anna Eleniak have nine children: six sons and three daughters: Volodymyr (Walter), Peter, Paul, Evstakhiy, Lawrence; daughters: Mrs. I. Prybosh (Pauline), Mrs. Daniel Snatynchuk (Irene), Mrs. Adela Koshka; 20 grandchildren. (U.N. 7 March 1968).

WASYL ELENIK, one of the first Ukrainian settlers to make Canada his home, was born 22 December 1859 at Nebyliv, district Kalush in Western Ukraine, the son of Stefan Eleniak (born 1818, died 1872) and Eudokia Shtefura (born 1822, died 1878), the eldest of five children, Ivan, Peter and Michael and Anna (married Chichak). In 1883 he married Anna, daughter of George Roszko and Maria Trenchiy (born 1866 in Nebyliv) and was employed in lumbering industry, driving rafts down the river Limnytsia. His parents owned only three morgen of land (1 morgen about $\frac{2}{3}$ of an acre), therefore, he decided to emigrate to Canada. He heard about Canada from German colonists who had relatives in Canada "where the settlers receive 160 acres of land for nothing". He was joined by two fellow villagers, Ivan Pylypiw (Pylypiwskyi) and Yurko Panischak. At the end of the 1891 summer they left their native village and proceeded to Hamburg. Yurko Panischak, short of money, was turned back; Wasył Eleniak and Ivan Pylypiw paid 100 gulden each for the passage and started for Canada on the S.S. OREGON. They arrived in Quebec 7 September 1891 and proceeded to Winnipeg. Before settling on homesteads, they went to work on Mennonite community farms in Gretna, Manitoba. After two years Wasył Eleniak having saved enough money, returned to Nebyliv with the intention to bring his family over to Canada. He obtained a regular passport from the district office in Kalush (dated 26 February 1894) and together with six other Nebyliv families proceeded to Hamburg. He found himself short of money to pay the passage for all members of the family and was forced to return to Nebyliv to work for another month to drive rafts on the Limnytsia river and having earned the needed money left again with other families, that of Michael and Nicholas Malnyk, for Hamburg. They boarded the S.S. MONGOLIAN and arrived at Quebec 25 June 1894.

Frank and Wojciech's records are listed but there is no mention here of Andrew. However, Mike Workun reports that the church six miles west of Nisku, Alberta, was built in 1900, on land donated by Andrew Halwa and his signature can be found on the minutes of the meeting which records the beginning of the construction. (See, Ukrainians in Alberta, p. 146.) The name Yaslo* in the records is confusing, as such a district is found only south of Peremyshl and these people definitely arrived from the district of Jaroslaw. The word Yaslo* is probably the result of the defective hearing and misspelling of the word Jaroslaw which is pronounced Yaroslaw.
- No. 152 HAMALUK, Gabriel — Arrived from the village of Rohizna, district of Cherniwci, Bukovina, Austria. (Information supplied by Wasyl Hamaluk, son of Gabriel, who lived in the Zawale and Andrew districts.) (The latter information supplied by Metro (Dick) Hamaliuk, son of George.)

- No. 159 HERMAN, Onufrey — Arrived from the village of Strilkiwci, district of Borshchiw, province of Galicia, Austria. (Information supplied by Mrs. Barbara Kushniruk, whose parents had arrived from the same village.)
- No. 168 HOLOWATY, Petro — Arrived from the village of Bilche Zolote, district of Borshchiw, like his brother Kyrylo. (Information supplied by Kyrylo's grandsons, John and Peter.)
- No. 169 HOLOWAYCHUK, Hryhory — Arrived from the village of Novostawci. He died about 1910 and was buried by the old Russian Orthodox Church about two and one half miles east of Chipman. His wife, Anastasia, is also buried there. Another Hryhory, or Harry, arrived in Canada in 1905 with his wife of the same name, Anastasia. The obituary under this number definitely refers to her. See biography of Joseph and Nellie Michalchuk, p. 412, Ukrainians in Alberta. (Information regarding the above, provided by Nicolas Holowaychuk, grandson of the Hryhory Holowaychuk who arrived in 1898.) The Hryhory and Anastasia Holowaychuk under this number had six children: Stephen who married Ksenia Mayko; Mary, unmarried; Parania (Mrs. Yakim Wilinsky); Hanka (Mrs. Myron Chemiak); John, who married Tekla Koroluk; Harry, who married Tacka Hawryluk.
- No. 170 HOLOWAYCHUK, Hrycko — This Holowaychuk came from the same village as above, the village of Novostawci, district of Radekhiw, province of Galicia, Austria. The village was a satellite of the village of

- Lashkiw. (Information supplied by O. Kondratiuk, a later arrival from the same area and now in Edmonton.)
- No. 171 HOLOWAYCHUK, Stephen — The village should be Lashkiw, not Lashky.
- No. 174 HRYHIRCHUK, Achtemij — Arrived from the village of Shyshkiwci, province of Bukovina, Austria. (Information supplied by William Panchuk who came from the same village and now resides in Kelowna, B.C.)
- No. 175 HRUDEY, Petro — Arrived in 1898 from the village of Zakuche, district of Sniatyn, province of Galicia, Austria. (Information supplied by Stephen Hrudehy, his son.) His wife Maria was a Meroniuk by birth.
- No. 176 HRUDEY, Semen — Son of Petro Hrudehy by a previous marriage, arrived at the same time as his father (see No. 175.) In the obituary quoted, there was an error, as there was no Andrew in the family. However, the name of William has been omitted. (Information as in No. 175.)

He married Rosalia Kaschysyn at Wostok on June 15, 1908 and their children were as follows: John, Paul, Frances, Mike, Carl, Joe, Peter (now Fr. Damien), Steve, and Nick. (Information submitted by Dr. M. Weleschuk, a member of this family.)
- No. 599 WERENKA, Nykolay — Arrived from the village of Kysyliw with his wife Magdalena and four children because George was born on board ship. He cancelled his first homestead south of the North Saskatchewan River when his father, Todyr and his mother, Wasylina (nee Stolarchuk) Verenka arrived with their family of three sons: Ivan, George, and Dmytro, together with the family of their daughter Mary who had married Ivan Fedirchuk. Ivan had also arrived with his family consisting of his wife Anytsia (nee Sawka) and their children, Anastasia, Nykolai, and Alexander. They all settled together in what afterwards became Wahstao in what George's daughter remembers as being the next year. (Information provided by Mrs. Stephen Repka, a daughter of George Verenka who was a brother of Nykolai.) The other two names, Artymon and Harry Verenka, do not belong to this group.
- No. 607 WINCENTOWICZ, Leopold — Annie Wincentowich, listed under this number, was the wife of Joseph Wincentowich who arrived with his family from the village of Horishna Vyhnanaka, district of Chortkiw, Galicia, in 1902 together with a large number of their fellow villagers. (Information provided by Mrs. Anne Kryskow who came as a child with the same group to Canada.) The brother should be Mr. Nick Maniowsky.

- No. 626, 627, 628 WOWK families — Obviously, the records of three families have been intermingled. Ivan and Anna Wowk arrived from the village of Star-iawa, district of Mostyska, Galicia, Austria, in 1900 to settle first at Redwater where a member of their fellow villagers also settled. The children in their family were Michael 19, Ivan 17, Dmytro 7, Mykola 14, Maryna 3, Kateryna 6 wk., and three more children were born in Canada, Wasyl and Petro in Redwater, Wasylena in Stry district. Since Ivan had older sons and few homesteads were available, the family moved east and obtained homesteads close to the Indian Saddle Lake Reserve in 1904. The Dmytro Wowk who was born in 1892 (No. 626) was a member of this family. The Stry community in which they lived was near Vilna. The first part of No. 627 refers to Iwan Wowk who was clearly the father of this family. (Information submitted by Mrs. Severko Leskiw (Wasylena), a member of this family.)

The information on Mychailo Wowk (No. 628) appears to be correct. The other Dmytro Wowk (No. 626) was his son and their family lived in an area which was known as Zawale, south-west of Andrew, Alberta. He also had a son named Ivan. (Information supplied by Harry Nikiforuk of Edmonton, a grandson.)

Ivan and Maria Wowk, the third Wowk family, arrived in Canada with three children, Alexàndra (not Alexander), Dominika, and Oleksa from the village of Molodia, province of Bukovina, Austria (now Ukraine). The residence of Chinova Bocvia reported in the original document appears to be a mispronunciation and a misspelling of Cherniwci, Bukovina. Cherniwci is the capital of the province of Bukovina, and Molodia was a village very close to the capital city. The family first arrived at Wostok and filed on a homestead near Shandro. When their daughter Alexandra married and moved to her husband's home north of Smoky Lake, the parents followed and that is why there was no later record of them on the original homestead. (Information supplied by Mrs. Alexandra Semeniuk, formerly Alexandra or Sanda Wowk above.)

(Information submitted by John Eleniak, son of Wasyl Eleniak.)
- No. 658 ZOMNIR, Michael — Arrived in Canada from the village of Hlyniany, district of Peremeshliany. (Informant, Mr. Andrew Kinash.)

Correspondence Regarding Further Information

While attempting to discover the villages from which many of those in Dr. Kaye's "dictionary" had arrived, I visited the National Ethnic Archives and sometimes wrote to them to obtain information. My first letter to them came as the result of a conversation I had with Stephen Hawrelak who informed me that his father, Wasyl Hawrelak, and his uncle Andrew Hawrelak had left their native village, Banyliw, to escape conscription and had travelled to Canada on the passports of Hnat Makowichuk and Dmytro Domenchuk. Earlier, I had interviewed the late Mrs. Dominika (Andrichuk) Holeyshuk and, during the interview, she told me that Wasyl and Andrew Hawrelak had been on the same ship as her family early in April 1899. While enquiring about the two Hawrelak brothers, I also sought information about other families who appeared to have been omitted in the projected dictionary of biographies of early Ukrainians, chiefly settlers from the village of Toporiwtsi who had arrived in Canada in 1899 to settle around Pakan and Smoky Lake. I later discovered others had also been omitted. While we cannot be wholly certain, it appears that those who were left out were settlers who had settled on homesteads which had either not been surveyed before 1900 or, if surveyed, the surveys had not been officially recorded. This would probably include not only large areas on the north side of the North Saskatchewan River but also areas to the east on the south side of the same river, including Desjarlais, Ispas, and Hairy Hill.

As a result of this enquiry, I received a reply from Mr. Walter Neutel of National Ethnic Archives on February 14, 1977, that a Hnat Dumenczik, age 24, had arrived in Halifax on the ship Armenia on April 18, 1899, but there was no mention of a Makowiczuk. In regard to names of other immigrants, Mr. Neutel listed the following:

Dwerniczuk Georgi, age 33, arrived in Halifax aboard the "Brazilia" on May 9, 1899, with his wife and three children. Other arrivals on the same ship were Ponich, Georgi with his wife and three children, Nikalajczuk Ilia, age 42, with his wife, and Trofanenko Iwan, age 35, with his wife and two children. But Rusnak Nykola, age 31 with his wife and two children arrived in Halifax aboard the "Bulgaria" on June 5, 1899. From this information it was obvious that the first Toporiwtsi settlers in the Pakan area had arrived on at least two ships and not on one as had been previously expected. Of all the settlers who came in 1899 to settle around Pakan and Smoky Lake, Dr. Kaye had only been able to obtain fuller information on Nykolaj Stogrin who had first filed on a homestead near Wostok an area which had been surveyed earlier. Though he had recorded the names of these settlers from the ships' manifests, his advertisements in Ukrainian papers had failed to obtain any further information.

On February 23, 1977, another letter came from Ottawa signed by W. Senchuk, Coordinator East European Groups in the National Ethnic Archives in which he volunteered to provide information on early arrivals if my list was no larger than twenty names. To take advantage of his generous offer I used Stephen Stogrin's list of early Smoky Lake and Pakan residents and also added a few others who might have been omitted. In answering my letter Mr. Senchuk again repeated that there was no Makowichuk listed as arriving on the Armenia on April 18, 1899 on Dr. Kaye's list. Further omissions on the list were the names of Ilia Brusanowski and Nykolai Galagan and also the name of Werenka who were alleged to have arrived in that year. It is likely that they came in the year following. The other arrivals at Halifax on the ship "Brazilia" on June 9, 1899, are recorded below together with Stephen Stogrin's placement of their homesteads.

Only a portion of this ship's manifest was sent to me but in this portion of the manifest there were also the names of Stefan Shandro and Maria Kapitsky on both of whom there is more complete information in Dr. Kaye's projected "dictionary".

At the same time I also received a copy of the manifest which listed the "Brazilia" passengers on her voyage about six weeks later to reach Halifax on June 18, 1899. This manifest contains the names of two Strynadka brothers who came with their families at that time. The information on them is as follows:

Strynadka Hryc 57

Strynadka Hafia 45

Strynadka Tymofijll

Strynadka Nastasia 11

Strynadka Kost 4

Strynadka Dionizy 34

Strynadka Marafta 31

Strynadka Paraska 10

Strynadka Menidora 6

Strynadka Georgi 1

Strynadka Tanasij 17

George (Georgi) Strynadka from this list reports that Tanasij was that another brother's son who chose to emigrate with their family.

This report is submitted in the hope that it might be included with the main list of names submitted by Dr. Kaye as it might explain some of the omissions.
