

Freedom for Nations!

Freedom for the Individual!

THERE IS AN ALTERNATIVE

Humanity yearns for freedom yet lives in fear of a nuclear holocaust which haunts the world like a nightmare. Earlier this week the summit in Geneva between the USA and the USSR had on its agenda nuclear disarmament. But this merely tries to remove the symptoms without attacking the cause.

The cause of the current world political crisis is the existence of Russian Communist aggression backed by the threat of nuclear war, if the West tries to interfere with Moscow's aim of world domination.

How to avoid the catastrophe of nuclear war was the subject of another conference — held in London this week — which showed that the world's best chance of survival lies in the liberation struggle of the nations subjugated by the Russians.

The conference of the European Freedom Council and the Anti-Bolshevik Bloc of Nations, with representatives of free countries and others occupied by Russia, was an exciting alternative to the stale rhetoric of arms reduction talks which concentrate on numbers, not people.

The Russian Communist Empire feels itself "threatened", not because the West wants to make war on Moscow, but because it fears the nations it has tried to crush and the people it has oppressed. During its sixty eight year existence, this empire has destroyed over 50 million people.

Its path is paved with genocide, concentration camps, psychiatric prisons, liquidation by organised famines (7,000,000 Ukrainians were starved to death between 1932-33), aggressive wars and the violation of national, human and religious rights.

Heroic Afghanistan swims in the blood of women, children and the elderly killed by the Russian invaders. Russian imperialism now extends to Angola, Vietnam, Cambodia and Nicaragua.

The subjugated nations Ukraine, Byelorussia, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Poland, Hungary, Chechia, Slovakia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Croatia, Serbia, Slovenia, Albania, North Caucasus, Georgia, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Cossackia, Adel Ural, Turkestan, and Siberia, make up the majority of the population of the Russian empire and constitute the Free World's greatest allies.

They are capable of destroying the Russian empire from within by their revolutionary liberation struggles and without a single nuclear missile being unleashed.

Reagan's Strategic Defence Initiative, the so-called "Star Wars" system, was supported by the EFC/ABN conference because any attempt to shift the emphasis to the destruction of weapons rather than people should be encouraged. However, the conference was disappointed that the Geneva summit ignored the plight of the subjugated nations, the constant targets of Moscow's aggression.

The West, in its own interests and those of all humanity, should do everything to help the liberation struggles of the subjugated nations.

These countries will all eventually have to do their own fighting against the Russians. But there is much in the way of moral and technological support that the Free World should give to countries like Afghanistan, fighting now, and countries like Ukraine which have fought against Russia twice already this century and will do so again.

The uprisings of the subjugated countries are the key to a world free at last of the threat of nuclear war and the obscenity of mass expenditure on armaments while whole countries starve.

The West can help create the conditions for these uprisings. Just talking about scrapping missiles is naive. If Gorbachev and Reagan agreed to scrap half their nuclear weaponry, there would be more than enough left to destroy the world.

Help to scrap the Russian empire and there will not be any need for the missiles.
