INTRODUCTION

This collection was donated to the Public Archives of Canada by Georg Zuk of Vienna, Austria in 1978, 1981 and 1982. Also, material originally loaned by Andry Zhuk to the Shevchenko Scientific Society in Sarcelles, France was transferred to the Public Archives in 1979 and 1985. Additional material was donated by Dr. Yury Boshyk in 1984.

The newspapers, periodicals and other publications were kept in the collection and are included in volumes 36 to 210. Many of these publications are rare and historically valuable.

The collection is organized in volumes which are boxes of various sizes.

Some files have been photocopied and the original material is deposited in the vault. File 8 of volume 169 consisting of the publication Mirovoi Fashizm, Sbornik Statei, edited by N. Meshcheriakov (1923) has been microfilmed and it is also available on reel H-1746.

A modified Library of Congress system of Slavic transliteration is used in this finding aid, however some names, titles and words previously transliterated according to other systems were left in their original form.

The Andry Zhuk Collection is important to the study of modern Ukrainian history because it contains rare archival material relating to the history of the first Ukrainian political parties in the Russian Empire, the Soiuz Vyzvolenia Ukrainy (Union for the Liberation of Ukraine), the Ukrainian cooperative movement and the Ukrainian communities outside Ukraine. The collection provides valuable historical information on the political situation and events among Ukrainians in the Austro-Hungarian Empire during the First World War. The archival material also provides information on the European origins of the political and historical development of the Ukrainian community in Canada. The collection contains rare and unpublished historical information that will require scholars to reinterpret and rewrite some important aspects of Ukrainian and East European history.

This collection was organized and processed with the assistance of many archivists, historians and specialists. In particular, special thanks are due to Dr. Yury Boshyk who was instrumental in acquiring this collection and arranging its transfer to the Public Archives of Canada. The assistance of Halyna Kis is gratefully acknowledged in processing part of the publications in this collection. Georg Zuk has provided invaluable information and advice in the organization of the collection and in the preparation of this finding aid.

A BIOGRAPHY OF ANDRY ZHUK

Andry Zhuk was born on 14 July 1880 into an old Ukrainian cossack family in the village of Vovchok, Lubny County in Poltava Province. Since his father was unable to afford further education, Andry completed only three years of a parochial school. His father apprenticed him to a village clerk at the age of eleven and at the age of fourteen he was already working as the clerk's assistant. He then worked as a secretary (scribe) in the local zemstvo (land assembly) administration and was employed in administrative and judicial tasks.

At the beginning of 1899 Andry began to work in the district zemstvo office in Lubny. During this period he was already financially supporting himself and his family. He read widely, associated with students and joined an illegal Ukrainian group under the leadership of Mykola Porsh. This group was transformed in 1900-1901 into a political organization of the Revolutionary Ukrainian Party (RUP). During this period he became acquainted with Symon Petliura, Oleksandr Rusov, Mykola Mikhnovsky, Volodymyr Vynnychenko and many other political and literary figures that later became prominent in Ukrainian history. In the spring of 1901, a campaign to distribute revolutionary political pamphlets among the local villages was initiated. During the resulting investigations, the Tsarist police traced the pamphlets to Andry Zhuk and he was released from his position. Zhuk left for Poltava and with the assistance of Volodymyr Koshoviy he was able to obtain a position in the statistical bureau of the local zemstvo.

In June 1901 a Ukrainian student conference was held in Poltava which was the first organizational meeting of the RUP. Zhuk took part in this conference as the representative of the Lubny district revolutionary group. In the fall of 1901, Zhuk was drafted into the Russian army despite protests by doctors that he was unfit medically. He served in the Poltava Military District office and was able to maintain contact with his political friends. In the fall of 1902, he fell sick and after two weeks in Kharkiv hospital, he was given a one-year leave from military service to recover his health.

During his year of leave, he worked in the office of Mykola Mikhnovsky, a lawyer in Kharkiv. He then was an employee of the Kharkiv-Mykolaiev railroad. He took an active role in the local RUP organization and maintained contact with other branches of the RUP. He was one of the main organizers of the Union of Ukrainian Railway Employees in Kharkiv and produced a number of illegal proclamations for the Kharkiv RUP organization.

In the fall of 1903 he was once again called to complete his military service. He served in the general headquarters of the Kursk Gubernia but soon was transferred to Kharkiv City Brigade where he worked in office administration. He was arrested in December 1903 during a general arrest of RUP members by police. He was imprisoned at Kholodna Hora until July 1904 when an amnesty was declared to celebrate the birth of the tsar's son. He completed his military service in Kursk and was released in November 1905 in the midst of the rebellions of that year.

Zhuk again moved to Kharkiv where he continued to take an active part in the Kharkiv RUP organization. He was the delegate to the party convention in Kiev in December, 1905 when the name of the party was changed to the Ukrainian Social-Democratic Workers' Party (USDRP). At this convention Zhuk was elected to the Central Committee as Secretary-General. He then engaged in political work in Kharkiv, Lubny and Kiev and contributed to the underground party press, Haslo, Selianyyn, Sotsiial-Demokrat, Vilna Ukraina and Borotba under the pseudonyms, Khrushen, Ilchenko, Vovchansky and others.

In August 1906 he was again arrested with many other party members and imprisoned in Lukianivsk Prison in Kiev. Despite this second general arrest of USDRP members, the party continued to grow. Another prisoner at this time was a political acquaintance, Anna Nedilko, a teacher from Nizhyn who was imprisoned for political activities. She was released in the fall of 1909 and left for Lviv where she later married Andry Zhuk.

In January 1907 Zhuk was released from prison on bail to attend his trial. He resumed his political activities and worked in the secretariat of the USDRP Central Committee. He also worked on the party newspaper Slovo. Zhuk's trial was scheduled in Kiev for 12 October 1907. Rather than appear before the court, he crossed the border illegally into the Austro-Hungarian Empire with his friends, Volodymyr Stepankivsky and Volodymyr Vynnychenko.

Zhuk with his political friends planned to travel to the United States to raise funds for the Ukrainian Social Democratic movement in both the Austria-Hungarian and Russian Empires. This group travelled as far as Geneva, Switzerland. Here Zhuk had the opportunity to engage in political activities, discuss political theory and strategies with the mostly Russian political emigré community but felt that they were primarily concerned with theoretical topics far removed from everyday concerns of the Ukrainian people. Zhuk stayed in Geneva only for a short time and then decided to dedicate himself to working among the Ukrainian people. He returned to Lviv where he became involved in Ukrainian community work.

At first Zhuk worked for his Galician friends in the Ukrainian Social Democratic Party (USDP) and contributed to its paper, Zemlia i Volia. He was a prominent member of the eastern Ukrainian USDRP Group Abroad in Lviv from 1908 to 1911. He maintained his contacts with the USDRP journal Slovo in Kiev, and was associate editor of Pratsia. He also contributed to the non-political paper Ekonomist in Lviv which dealt with cooperative matters. Zhuk became increasingly interested in cooperative affairs and at the Prosvita Congress held in Lviv in February 1909, he made a presentation on the role of cooperatives in the struggle for the liberation of the Ukrainian nation. Zhuk was convinced that the cooperative movement provided a secure and necessary solution towards the economic liberation of the broad masses of the Ukrainian people. However, his position was interpreted by some members of his party as a heresy and a denunciation of social democratic principles and by 1912 he was expelled from the USDRP party. In 1909 he had published a collection of his articles, Kooperatsia, Teoriia i Znachinnia ii dla Nas. As a result of his support of cooperative principles, he was appointed editor of the cooperative periodicals Ekonomist and Samopomich. They were produced by the central administration of the cooperative movement in Lviv. Zhuk remained in this position until the outbreak of war in 1914. He also worked in various Ukrainian organizations such as Prosvita and Silskyi Hospodar. He contributed to other newspapers such as Pismo z Prosvity, and Dilo in Lviv and Rada in Kiev.

In March 1911 a conference was held in Lviv to organize a Ukrainian independence movement. It attempted to found organizations and establish contacts with Ukrainian organizations in the Russian Empire. The conference was attended by Viacheslav Lypynsky, Andry Zhuk, Volodymyr Stepankivsky, Lev Iurkevych and Dr. Volodymyr Kushnir. In November 1912 the Ukrainian Information Committee was founded to spread information in western Europe on the Ukrainian situation. Zhuk was a founding member of this committee.

The Balkan Wars in 1912 foreshadowed the coming war between the Central Powers and the Russian Empire. The Galician Ukrainian leadership declared in December 1912, that in case of war between Russia and Austria-Hungary, they would support Austria.

With the outbreak of war in the summer of 1914, the Ukrainian Information Committee became the Soiuz Vyzvolennia Ukrainy (Union for the Liberation of Ukraine--SVU). The SVU was established to promote a practical political approach to support the idea of an independent Ukraine and to work in partnership with the Central Powers in the war against the Russian Empire.

In May 1915 the All-Ukrainian Rada (council) was founded in Vienna and also the (military) administration of the Sichovi Striltsi, a volunteer Ukrainian military unit in the Austro-Hungarian Army. Zhuk was a founding member of the (military) administration and remained on its executive until this committee was disbanded in 1920.

The SVU included in its membership many Ukrainian political exiles from the Russian Empire. The SVU initiated a number of diplomatic activities, established contacts with the Central Powers and neutral nations, and generally assisted Ukrainians in Galicia. The SVU also attempted to establish contacts with other anti-tsarist organizations and political parties in Europe including the Bolsheviks under V.I. Lenin. The SVU conducted almost three years of educational work among the Ukrainian prisoners of war from the Russian armed forces. Zhuk travelled with other SVU members to prisoner-of-war camps making speeches and distributing literature. In 1918 the SVU was able to organize two infantry divisions from among Ukrainian prisoners-of-war which were sent to Central Ukraine.

The SVU was headed by a Presidium of four persons each responsible for separate departments. In Austria, the Union was represented by Marian Melenevsky and in Germany by Oleksander Skoropys-Ioltukhovsky. Volodymyr Doroshenko was responsible at first for publications and also for Ukrainian affairs in occupied Volynia. Zhuk's responsibility was the Central Bureau in Vienna, publishing projects and contacts with Ukrainians in Galicia. After the outbreak of the Russian Revolution and the establishment of the Ukrainian Central Rada in Kiev, the SVU declared its allegiance to the Rada and continued its work in purely cultural matters. Although the SVU continued cultural activities among Ukrainian prisoners-of-war it gradually decreased its activities. The liquidation of the SVU in 1918 was coordinated with the establishment of Ukrainian diplomatic representation in the capitals of the Central Powers after the Brest-Litovsk Treaty.

With the arrival in Vienna of Viacheslav Lypynsky, the representative of the Ukrainian Hetman Government, Zhuk was appointed special commissioner in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Under the Directorate Government, Zhuk was appointed ministerial counsellor in charge of the office of the Minister of Foreign Affairs in Vienna. Zhuk was a participant in two Ukrainian diplomatic conferences held during the summer of 1919 in Vienna and in Karlsbad. In 1920 Zhuk was a member of the All-Ukrainian National Rada in Vienna however this Rada soon disbanded.

Zhuk then worked for several years with the exile center ZUNR (Western Ukrainian National Republic). He worked on the paper, Ukrainsky prapor published in Vienna and later in Berlin and contributed to the paper Rada in Lviv. He also contributed to Ukrainian newspapers in Canada and in the United States. Zhuk and his wife Anna took an active part in the life of the Ukrainian community in Vienna. At the end of 1919 Zhuk was a sympathizer of the "Ukrainskykh khliborobiv-demokrativ" (Ukrainian Agrarian-Democrats).

Zhuk was one of the leading organizers of the Committee for the Defence of Western Ukrainian Lands established in Vienna in 1922. He worked on the journal Vyzvolennia in Vienna where he promoted the idea of a separate Galician-Volynian state. Zhuk was also a member of the executive of the Union of Ukrainian Journalists and Writers in Vienna as assistant to Oleksandr Oles, the President of the association.

Although Zhuk was opposed to the communist system of government in Soviet Ukraine, he supported the Ukrainianization policies of this government in the 1920's. Zhuk viewed the efforts of the Ukrainian Soviet Government favorably and considered the Ukrainian communist officials as Ukrainian patriots and nation-builders. Zhuk believed that the then Ukrainianization trend provided the foundation for development of Ukrainian economic and cultural life. At this time many Ukrainian exiles shared the same view as Zhuk and several major cultural figures such as Prof. Mykhailo Hrushevsky returned to Soviet Ukraine not knowing what their future held for them. Zhuk was also preparing to return to Soviet Ukraine until a Soviet diplomat persuaded him to remain in Vienna. It was a fortunate decision because the Ukrainianization trend was over after ten years and during the Stalinist repression of the 1930's most of the Ukrainian exiles who had returned, disappeared.

Zhuk's literary and publishing endeavors could not financially support him and his family and he began to make preparations to return to Lviv. The Polish government opposed his return and for a long time refused his entry. However, with the assistance of friends, he was able to return to Lviv in the summer of 1930. He returned at a particularly difficult time during the Polish government's pacification program directed against Ukrainians. He was obliged to maintain a low profile because he could have been imprisoned or deported at any time by the Polish authorities.

Zhuk found employment as head of the statistical section of the Audit Union of Ukrainian Cooperatives (Reviziyeni Soiuz Ukrainskykh Kooperatyv--RSUK) in Lviv, the reorganized successor to the pre-war cooperative association. He contributed to the periodicals of the RSUK among them: Hospodarsko-kooperatyvnyi chasopys, Kooperatyvna respublyka, Kaliendarets kooperatora and the daily newspaper Dilo. He also maintained contacts with political exiles from Soviet Ukraine through the mutual assistance and publishing cooperative "Khrotytsia". Zhuk worked in the executive of this cooperative and as associate editor of their publications. In addition to cooperative publications, he also edited Kredetova kooperatsia, the newspaper of the Central Bank (Tsentrobank). Zhuk was also a founder and secretary of Tovarystva Ukrainskykh Kooperativ (Association of Ukrainian Cooperative Workers) in Lviv, an association of cooperative movement supporters and intellectuals.

The Ukrainian cooperative movement grew steadily despite opposition from Polish authorities. This movement provided employment for many Ukrainians who were prevented by Polish government policies from obtaining employment in government and even in private industry.

In 1939 with the outbreak of the Second World War and the arrival of the Soviet Army in Lviv, Zhuk succeeded in escaping to Vienna. During the war years, Zhuk did not take an active part in the politics of the period. He wrote the occasional article for the few Ukrainian periodicals and newspapers that were published in Nazi-occupied Europe and collected published information on events in Ukraine.

With the arrival of Soviet troops in Vienna in 1945, Zhuk was once again in danger but the division of Vienna into zones of occupation by the allied armies allowed Zhuk to remain in the American zone. Zhuk resumed his extensive correspondence with his friends and was consulted by many Ukrainian academics as a specialist in Ukrainian political history. He had maintained custody of the archives of the SVU and all the other Ukrainian political and cultural associations in which he was involved.

With the evacuation of Allied occupation forces in 1955, the Ukrainian community in Vienna resumed its normal community life. Zhuk continued to maintain his interest in Ukrainian political and economic matters contributing articles on Ukrainian historical themes to newspapers and journals. He subscribed to many Ukrainian newspapers and corresponded with leading Ukrainian figures throughout the world on political and historical subjects in particular the RUP/USDRP and the SVU.

Andry Zhuk died on 3 September 1968.
