FOREWORD

The Classified Dictionary of Slavic Surname Changes in Canada which follows has been excerpted from the present writer's unpublished Master's Thesis, The Canadianization of Slavic Surnames: A Study in Language Contact, presented to the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research of the University of Manitoba in the spring of 1960.

In this study an attempt was made not only to present extensive material of over 2,000 Slavic surname changes, but also to construct a typological scheme of classification for these changes. The scheme is an attempt to classify Slavic surname changes according to the actual linguistic behaviour shown by the change in surname. It is based on four main principles: that the old, Slavic surname can undergo a change (1) in spelling (orthographically), (2) in sound (phonologically), (3) in structure (morphologically); or, (4) it may be substituted by an entirely new and linguistically unrelated surname (lexicologically). The typical Slavic (Ukrainian) surname, Bohajczuk, may serve to illustrate each category number:

1. Orthographical adjustments (Bohajczuk — Bohaychuck)
2. Phonological adjustments (Bohajczuk — Bohajczak)
 - 2.1 with changes in orthography
(Bohajczuk — Bohaychack)
3. Morphological adjustments
 - 3.1 abbreviations
 - 3.11 aphaeresis (Bohajczuk — Hajczuk)
 - 3.111 with orthographical changes
(Bohajczuk — Haychuck)
 - 3.112 with phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Hajczak)

- 3.113 with orthographical and phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Haychack)
- 3.12 syncope (Bohajczuk — Boczuk)
 - 3.121 with orthographical changes
(Bohajczuk — Bochuck)
 - 3.122 with phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Boczak)
 - 3.123 with orthographical and phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Bochack)
- 3.13 apocope (Bohajczuk — Bohaj)
 - 3.131 with orthographical changes
(Bohajczuk — Bohay)
 - 3.132 with phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Behaj)
 - 3.133 with orthographical and phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Behay)
- 3.14 combination (Bohajczuk — Haj)
 - 3.141 with orthographical changes
(Bohajczuk — Hay)
 - 3.142 with phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Shaj)
 - 3.143 with orthographical and phonological changes
(Bohajczuk — Shaje)
- 3.2 hybridizations (Bohajczuk — Boer)
 - 3.21 with orthographical changes
(Bohajczuk — Bowman)
 - 3.22 complex hybrids
(Bohajczuk — Bailey)
- 4. Lexical adjustments
 - 4.1 with formal connection (Bohajczuk — Bilsley)
 - 4.2 with semantic connection (Bohajczuk — Richman)

4.3 changes within the Slavic languages system
(Bohajczuk — Bohajsky)

4.4 no connection (Bohajczuk — Trent)

It is hoped that the present Dictionary will stimulate additional research on interlingual relationships in Canada as far as the Slavs are concerned, and on Slavic name changing in particular. Many aspects of the problem remain to be explored. Of special interest is the creation of entirely new surnames, genuine Canadian onomastic neologisms such as Puhach — Pauch, Mikolash — McLash, and many others. In addition, it is to be noted that as the Dictionary includes those surname changes recorded in the province of Manitoba only, it is probable that future investigations among Slavic communities in other Canadian regions (for example, the Slavic community in French Canada), will show tendencies not found in the present study.

Toronto, June 1960.

DICTIONARY OF SLAVIC SURNAME CHANGES

Part I

OLD SURNAME — NEW SURNAME

REMARKS

The first part of the Dictionary lists all Slavic surname changes listed in the Manitoba Gazette from 1937 (Volume 66) to 1957 (Volume 86). Each listing is composed of four items: (1) the old, Slavic surname, together with any alternative surname or variation which may have been given in the Gazette; such an alternative surname is separated from the first by a slash (/); (2) the new surname; (3) the volume number and issue number of the Manitoba Gazette from which the name change was excerpted; the volume number is placed to the left of the decimal point, and the issue number to the right; (4) its classification number, according to the scheme of classification for Slavic surname changes outlined in the Foreword.

In cases where the Gazette listed an identical surname change more than once, the volume and issue numbers given in the Dictionary record only the first such change documented by the Gazette from 1937 to 1957.

Part II

NEW SURNAME — OLD SURNAME

Each listing in Part II of the Dictionary is composed of two items only: the new surname, followed by the old, Slavic surname, together with any alternative surname or variation of the old surname which may have been given in the Manitoba Gazette, Vol. 66—86 (1937—1957). In many cases the new surname is followed by several Slavic surnames, each of which was changed to the same new surname.

The documentation and classification numbers for any single surname change may be found by referring to the old, Slavic surname as listed in Part I of the Dictionary.
