PREFACE

The year 1988 marks the thousandth year since Christianity was accepted as the state religion in Kyivan Rus', or present day Ukraine. As part of the celebration of this millennium, I felt the desire to offer my contribution in the best way I know - by presenting a general schematism of the Ukrainian Catholic Church. Although some of the eparchies published schematisms in Ukraine before World War II, there has never before been published a general schematism for the whole Ukrainian Catholic Church.

When the subject was mentioned to several of the bishops in 1983, the idea was very well received and I was unofficially encouraged to begin the work. A 28 page proposal of the contents of the general schematism, which was to be a survey of the entire church in diaspora including Poland and Yugoslavia, was presented to the bishops at the Synod which took place in the September of 1985, and the work was commissioned by the Synod as part of the millennium celebration.

The first step was to prepare a questionnaire to be sent out by each bishop to every priest in his diocese, and these were mailed at the end of 1985, requesting that they be returned by March of the following year. When the questionnaires began to come back began the task of compiling the information into "entries" for each eparchy, parish and priest. As the entries were completed, I sent a copy to each priest to proofread and make corrections or additions. The same procedure was followed for religious communities, for seminaries, colleges and high schools, and for Ukrainian Catholic organizations. In the meantime, I tried to gather as much information as I could about each parish - especially since very few priests were able to send me a list of former pastors with dates. Old registers, records, newspapers, necrologies, personal accounts, etc. had to be consulted. Unfortunately much of the printed information was very incomplete and vague. Some of it is grossly inexact. By keeping a cross reference file [which soon will be printed separately as a supplement to the schematism] many of the errors have hopefully been eliminated.

Although most of the questionnaires were returned, filled out as well as possible, there are always a few who do not comply with requests of this type. This meant another mailing of questionnaires directly to those who did not answer, asking for the information (nicely) and then another letter (more insistent) and sometimes even a third (with dire threats). For those who still did not answer, the entry has had to be printed with the note "None reported". This is to be regretted, and fortunately there are not many.

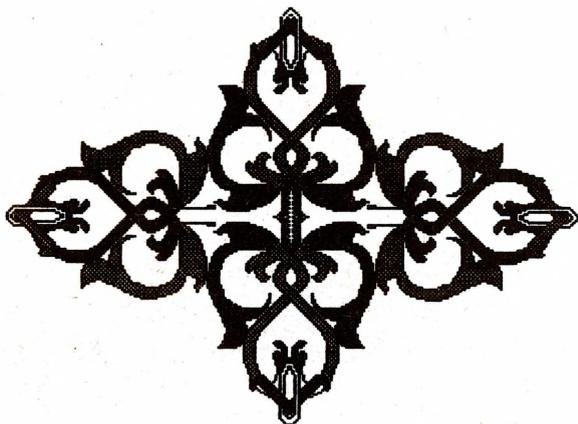

A "progress report" was presented to the bishops at the synod which took place in September 1987, outlining the state of completion for each diocese, and describing how the work would be presented. The projected publication date was not set, but was understood to be in 1988.

The transliteration of the names is always a problem. For living priests, I have used the spelling of the names as it is used by the priests themselves at the present time. However, they tend to spell their names according to the transliteration of the country in which they reside, and a number of them have resided in several countries. Also, it seems that the printed sources frequently reflect the preferences of the editor in spelling. If I have not used the current transliteration, I apologize. For former pastors who are not living, I have spelled the names as they most often appear in documents, since they almost invariably signed their names in Cyrillic.

If I had realized the enormity of the difficulty entailed in the work, it is probable that I would never have attempted it. The pressure to finish the schematism in 1988 has caused a certain amount of compromise between the desire to be as complete as possible, and the need to get the work to the printers. I have tried never to compromise accuracy, however, and have tried to check and doublecheck each contradiction in the data. Without the cooperation of the bishops, heads of religious communities and the help of many kind and interested persons it would not have been finished even by the second millennium. It would not be possible to mention them all, but I am sincerely grateful to those who went out of their way to collect data, look up obscure pieces of information, put up with my constant demands, send back proofread copies, mail jubilee books, year books and catalogues to me, etc. I am also grateful for those letters which poured in from all over the world, encouraging me to finish the work in spite of difficulties.

It would have made the book unnecessarily cumbersome to include a general index of all names of persons and localities mentioned. There are therefore two indexes of entries, one for members of the living clergy, and one for presently active parishes/missions/localities. The cross-file of all priests who have been active in the Ukrainian Catholic diaspora, with their dates and places of birth, dates and places of ordination, name of ordaining bishop, dates and places of death, places of burial, and service record [positions in parishes with years in each and other major assignments and positions with years for each] will be published as a companion volume to the schematism, and will be entitled "The Ukrainian Catholic Clergy in Diaspora (1884-1988)".

INTRODUCTION

St. George Cathedral - Lviv
The principal Ukrainian Catholic Cathedral since 1807

The Historical Background of the Ukrainian Catholic Church

In 988, Christianity was accepted as the state religion of Kyivan Rus' and the "baptism of Rus'-Ukraine" under Prince Volodymyr of Kyiv provided a fertile foundation for the growth of Christianity and for the building of numerous churches, monasteries and other religious institutions in his domain. At that period the Great Schism between Rome and Constantinople had not yet taken place, and there was no question of union or non-union with Rome, Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch or Jerusalem, although each of these patriarchates had developed its own individual liturgical rituals and traditions.

After the rupture between Rome and Constantinople in 1054, the grand princes and metropolitans of Kyivan Rus' did not break their ties with Rome. It was only after the Tartar invasions and the ensuing confusion during the 13th century that a rift became evident. Metropolitan Maxim of Kyiv [a Greek] changed his residence to Volodymyr on the Klazma in 1299, and his successor Peter [a western Ukrainian] made Moscow his permanent residence, a decision which was to have a disastrous effect upon relations between the Kyivan Church and the Holy See.

There were several attempts to reestablish the union of the Greek Church with Rome. The last of these attempts was made at the Council of Florence (1439) on a larger scale, because it involved all Eastern Churches [including the Kyivan Metropolitanate to which Moscow then also belonged]. In 1595 all of the Ukrainian bishops signed a declaration of willingness to accept union with Rome, and in 1596 at the Synod of Berestja the metropolitan and the Kyivan bishops definitively reunited with the See of Rome, even though two of the bishops weakened when it came to following through on their decision of the previous year. It was only later that the Eparchy of Peremyšl (1692) and the Eparchy of Lviv (1700) rejoined the Union. The Eparchy of Luck, because of political pressure broke union in 1633, and later rejoined in 1702.

Because of political intrigue, misplaced zeal, and general misunderstanding, fear and mistrust, the people were divided into the "Orthodox" and the "Uniates", which caused an unnatural enmity to develop among a people who would have been much stronger and influential if it had been unanimously united with Rome. Moscow would not have been able to use the religious split of the Ukrainian people as an excuse to occupy Ukrainian territories as "liberator" and to attempt the annihilation of Ukrainian identity under the pretext of "defender and propagator of Orthodoxy". The Pseudo-Synod of Lviv in 1946, which was arranged by Stalin and the Russian Communist Party, was such an attempt within the memory of many still living at the present time.

The eastern part of Ukraine had come under Russian domination in 1654/1667. The western part of the Kyivan Metropolitanate had for the most part adhered to the Union, whereas the eastern part had not. With the blessing of Constantinople, the eastern part officially joined the Muscovite Patriarchate in 1686. After the partitions of Poland (1772/1795) the Tsarist government suppressed the Kyivan Catholic Metropolitanate, and gradually eliminated all of its eparchies and parishes in the territory which they had occupied.

After the last Kyivan Catholic Metropolitan died in 1805, the former Metropolitanate of Halyč (which had existed for a time in the 14th century and which was suppressed by Constantinople) was reestablished by Rome in 1807 in the southwestern part of Ukraine. This territory had been made part of the Austrian Empire after the partitions of Poland. The metropolitan, with the title of Metropolitan of Halyč and Archbishop of Lviv, was recognized by the Holy See as the ecclesiastical head, and unofficially as the Major Archbishop of the whole Ukrainian Catholic Church.

The Beginning of Diaspora and First Great Wave of Immigration (1880-1914)

Because of lack of land reforms and the growing population, the life of the Ukrainian agricultural class was becoming more and more unbearable during the 18th and 19th centuries. Already in the 18th century the people had begun to look for land and better conditions in the northeastern part of present day Yugoslavia which was part of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire at that time, settling around Ruskí Krstur and Kucura, and this may be considered as the beginning of the Ukrainian diaspora. In 1777 the Eparchy of Križevci was established by the Austro-Hungarian government for the Croats and also for the Ruthenians who had settled in this area.

The great wave of emigration started only toward the end of the 19th century, however. At that period, many people from the Metropolitanate of Halyč and from the Transcarpathian Dioceses of Mukačiv and Prjašiv went to the United States, seeking the opportunity to make money by working in the mines or in factories. When word was spread that there was land free for those who would come and settle on it in Canada, Brazil and Argentina, mass emigration began to take place to the those countries from the western provinces of Ukraine, mainly from the Metropolitanate of Halyč.

The Problems of the Early Immigrant Church

The inviting promise and glowing accounts of freedom and success attracted many Ukrainian workers and farmers to the New World. What they found when they got there, however, was less than the Utopia they had expected. At that time, workers in mines and factories were not protected from exploitation by the owners. The free land, instead of being similar to the fertile fields of Ukraine, was more likely to be an overgrown patch of jungle or a frozen plot in a desolate prairie, with no roads or means of transportation or communication. Not understanding the language or customs of the other inhabitants of the region, not having any resources but their own initiative and endurance to fall back on, they naturally sought out each other and tried to salvage whatever social stability they could by grouping together.

In addition, because of their ingrained mistrust of the Latin rite clergy, they did not even have the consolation of religion. The Latin rite bishops could not understand their reluctance to attend Mass or to accept the assistance of the Latin rite Catholic clergy, and considered them at best as ingrates, or at worst as schismatics. The people in diaspora naturally wanted to attend the Divine Liturgy in their own rite and language. Rather than become "Latynnyky", which was synonymous with traitor, some preferred to stay away from church altogether or to try to get an Orthodox priest, because the Latin rite priests could not celebrate in the Byzantine rite and did not speak the language of the people. The only way to solve the problem was to send Ukrainian Catholic priests to the people - the solution now sounds so simple!

Metropolitan Andriy Šeptyckyj, Major Archbishop of Lviv Spiritual Father and Founder of Ukrainian Catholic Church in Diaspora

The Ukrainian people in the Americas turned repeatedly to the spiritual head of the Ukrainian Catholic Church to send them some priests. Andriy Šeptyckyj, Metropolitan of Halyč and Major Archbishop of Lviv, was a giant of a man, spiritually as well as physically. He had to bear the sorrow of seeing his people dispersed over the face of the earth, and had to face the problem of how to provide some kind of pastoral care for them.

The problem of supplying priests was complicated not only by the fact that very few priests had any desire to uproot themselves and go to an uncertain future among a struggling immigrant community and have to face hardships to which they were unaccustomed, but also by the fact that almost all of the Ukrainian priests were married, and married priests were an anomaly in the New World. The Latin hierarchy of those countries were continuously insisting that Rome not permit married clergy to go to take care of Byzantine rite Catholics in their dioceses.

Time and again, Metropolitan Šeptyckyj tried to find missionaries from among the priests for work among the people in diaspora, but very few could be found. Some of those who did go returned home after a short time, discouraged by the difficulties and the downright hostility they encountered in some countries from some of the Latin rite clergy. Later when he was questioned about the few priests he had been able to send, the metropolitan replied simply "I sent the best I was able to find!"

Metropolitan Šeptyckyj made trips to the United States, to Canada, and to Brazil to reassure the people and to see what could be done for them. His concern is reflected in the many letters he wrote during this period to the Latin rite bishops themselves, trying to explain the situation to them. In each diocese, the Latin rite hierarchy gradually began to come to the realization that these people were neither ingrates nor schismatics, but faithful Catholics who asked only that they be allowed to worship in the manner of their ancestors.

Gradually priests began to arrive in the United States, then in Canada, Brazil and Argentina. Need was felt for better organization and a more coherent unity, and the people began to ask Metropolitan Šeptyckyj to intervene in Rome for the appointment of bishops of their own rite. In 1907, after much intercession from the people and the metropolitan and deliberation on the part of Rome, Bishop Soter Ortynsky was appointed, first as Apostolic Visitor in 1907, and then as Exarch in 1913 for the "Ruthenians" [a generic term at that time for Ukrainians and other Slavic Eastern rite Catholics] in the United States. In 1912, Bishop Nykyta Budka was appointed as the first Ukrainian Catholic Bishop of Canada.

In the meanwhile, the pastoral activity not only of the secular priests, but also of the religious clergy among the Ukrainian immigrants in diaspora continued. The Basilians were working in Canada, the United States, Brazil and Argentina, and the Redemptorists had founded an Eastern rite Branch for work chiefly in Canada. The apostolate of the women's religious communities had been going on quietly and effectively in Canada, the United States, Brazil and Argentina, and much of the credit for the successful survival of the Church in this early period belongs to the Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate and the Basilian Sisters.

The Second Great Wave Of Emigration (1944-1953)

During and after World War II, several hundreds of thousands of Ukrainians, the majority of them Catholics, were forced through political circumstances to leave their native land and emigrate, partly to the United States, Canada, Brazil, Argentina and Australia, and partly to European countries, Germany, France and Great Britain.

The first wave of immigrants had been nearly all farmers looking for land, or workers looking for employment in mines, in factories or with companies building railroads. Most of them had received only an elementary education.

The second wave was made up of political refugees escaping from communist oppression. In great part they had received high school or university education. They were attracted to the larger cities where better employment positions were available. The new parishes which were opened after World War II were mainly in the larger cities, and the parishioners were either second generation immigrants, who with better education had moved to the cities, or new immigrants with better education. As a result, generally the social, educational and economical status of Ukrainians and of the Church was raised considerably after World War II. Ukrainians were able to participate in the political, economical, educational and religious life of each country in which they settled, retaining at the same time their Ukrainian identity, thanks in great part to their separate Ukrainian religious organization.

With the influx of new immigrants, eventually the ecclesiastical jurisdictions of the United States and Canada were divided. Presently there are four eparchies in United States - Philadelphia, Stamford, Chicago and Parma (diagram on p. 1294) and five in Canada - Winnipeg, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Toronto and New Westminster (diagram on p. 1295). In Brazil, Argentina and Great Britain, Eastern rite auxiliary bishops were appointed to the Latin rite bishops, with temporary jurisdiction over the Catholics of Eastern rite, later becoming ordinaries (exarchs or eparchs). Eastern rite ordinaries were appointed directly for Germany, France and Australia.

With time, several eparchies developed their own Catholic school system, major and minor seminaries, colleges, high schools, elementary schools and catechetical centers. Ukrainian Catholic organizations were founded for promoting Ukrainian religious, cultural and social life. Printing houses, those already established and those newly established, were active in educating and in spreading information by means of books, journals and newspapers.

To the religious workers among the Ukrainians in diaspora after World War II were joined the Studites (founded by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj in 1902 in Halyčyna) and the Salesians of St. Don Bosco (Ukrainian work begun in 1932 in Italy), the Josephite Sisters (founded in 1898 in Halyčyna), the Studite nuns (founded in 1921 in Halyčyna), the Sisters Catechists of Sant'Ana (founded in Brazil in 1932), the Catechists of the Sacred Heart (founded in Brazil in 1940), the Missionary Sisters of the Mother of God (founded in Philadelphia in 1944) and the Missionary Sisters of Christian Charity (founded in Canada in 1946).

His Beatitude Josyf Cardinal Šliptyj His Crucial Role for the Unity of the Ukrainian Catholic Hierarchy in Diaspora

In 1963, the successor to Metropolitan Šeptyckyj, Metropolitan Josyf Šliptyj, was freed from his many years in a concentration camp, through the direct intervention of Pope John XXIII. He was obliged to live outside his Metropolitanate which had been "liberated" by the Communists, and took up residence in Rome. It soon became evident to him that with the proliferation of parishes and eparchies in different parts of the world there was a lack of coherence and general purpose.

After his release it was only a short time before he began calling together the Ukrainian Catholic bishops to synods in order to bring the Church to a unified and consistent entity, with the right to deliberate and decide questions regarding their own ritual and religious practice. The purpose of the synods was to foster unity among the hierarchy and the faithful in diaspora, and with the Mother Church, having as a goal to help as much as possible towards the reestablishment of the Catholic faith and the Catholic Church in Ukraine.

Through his activities and pastoral visits to all the Ukrainian Diaspora he drew the bishops and people within Ukrainian Catholic Church closer together. He made them aware that, although they were scattered in different parts of the world, there was a unity between themselves and the Mother Church in Ukraine, and made them conscious of their obligations to work not only for survival in diaspora, but also for the revival of a partially destroyed Church in Ukraine.

He erected in Rome his Pro-cathedral of St. Sophia, the Ukrainian Catholic University of St. Clement, and made Rome a center of the Ukrainian Catholic Church outside of Ukraine. Still living, he obtained the election of his successor and the formal consent of the Vatican for regular Synods of the Ukrainian Catholic Hierarchy under his and his successors' leadership, accomplishments which gave unified stability to the Ukrainian Catholic Church in diaspora and in Ukraine, and provided impetus for growth.

His hope, and that of the Church in diaspora, for the recognition of a Ukrainian Patriarchate, was not accomplished in his lifetime. Only time will tell what the future holds for this hope. Whatever the future, it will be in great part due to the powerful figure and forceful personality of this man who survived an imprisonment which would undoubtedly have killed a lesser man.

Towards the Future

The promotion of his successor, Archbishop Major Myroslav Ivan Lubačivskij to the dignity of cardinal, making the pro-cathedral of St. Sophia in Rome a cardinal's church, and the continuation of periodical Synods with the blessing of the Vatican has strengthened and sealed the unity of the Ukrainian Catholic Church within itself and with Rome. His Beatitude, Myroslav Ivan Lubačivskyj, has yet to accomplish the writing of his chapter in the history of the Ukrainian Church. His circumstances may not be identical to those faced by his two great predecessors, but the basic problems remain ever the same -

How does this unique Church keep its age old traditions and yet develop with the times?

How can it keep its unique identity and escape assimilation, and at the same time avoid the extremes of a ghetto mentality?

How can this unique Church provide the spiritual direction needed by the faithful in a world full of the pitfalls of materialism and religious apathy?

How can this unique Church help the individual develop his own self-respect and realize his identity and potential both as a Ukrainian and as a Catholic?

And finally - where are the priests, sisters and dedicated laity to come from and how will they be prepared for their mission, not only to keep alive the Ukrainian Catholic Church in diaspora but also to rebuild the partially destroyed church in their native land when the possibility comes sooner or later?

Chapter 1 ROME AND THE UKRAINIAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Historical Background Early relations between Kyiv and Rome

According to an old legend (probably dating from the 12th century) St. Andrew blessed the site of the future city of Kyiv and then went to Rome. It is interesting to note that when the legend was written the break between Constantinople and Rome had taken place, but the author of the legend says that the apostle went to Rome and not to Constantinople, although Kyiv was by that time supposedly under the jurisdiction of Constantinople.

The first concrete relation with Rome of the present Ukrainian people, then called Scythians by some historians, was through St. Clement, the fifth pope, who was exiled from Rome to Crimea, which now is part of Ukrainian territories. There is no doubt but that the saint preached to the inhabitants during his sojourn there, and may have created a Christian community.

The next notice that we have of missionary activity on Ukrainian territory is that Sts. Cyril and Methodius spent the winter of 860/861 in Crimea on a mission to The Khazars. Byzantine sources mention that after the siege of Constantinople by the Rus' in 860, the missionaries were sent to them and that there was a conversion of Rus' people<sup>1</sup>. St. Cyril in Crimea met a man who had a translation of Sacred Scripture written in the "rusin" alphabet, a fact widely discussed, since it indicates that the Slavs and neighboring Kyivan Rus' had an alphabet of their own and a Slavic translation of Holy Scriptures, which Sts. Cyril and Methodius later only perfected and adapted to the needs and use of the Bulgarian and Moravian peoples.

After the probable conversions in Kyiv in 861, the Apostles of the Slavs were sent in 863 to Moravia and in 868/869 they went for official approval of their work not to Constantinople, but to Rome. It was in Rome and not in Constantinople that St. Methodius received his episcopal ordination. The first Divine Liturgy in the Slavic language was celebrated by them not in Constantinople, but at St. Mary Major, on the Esquiline hill in Rome. The connection of the Apostles of the Slavs [and of Kyiv through them] with Rome is too evident to deny.

After the official proclamation of Christianity as the state religion in 988, there were continued contacts between Kyiv and Rome. In the main annals or "litopysy" there is no mention of this however, because the annals were censored by Greeks, whose metropolitans for several centuries ruled the Kyivan Church.

In the 17th century, Patriarch Nikon of Moscow (by no means a friend of Rome) in his compilation of the annals added information missing in the Primary Annals. Among other things he mentions contacts between Kyiv and Rome at St. Volodymyr's time. Rome sent delegates to Jaropolk, Volodymyr's brother. In 988 a delegation was sent from Rome to Prince Volodymyr in Korsun, bringing him as a gift part of the relics of St. Clement. Later there was a delegation from Pope John XV to Volodymyr in 991 and another one in 1000 from Pope Sylvester II. Also according to the information added to the annals, Volodymyr sent delegates to Rome in 994 and again in 1001.

Continued relations in spite of the widening rift between East and West

When the definitive break took place between Constantinople and Rome and with this practically all connections between eastern and western civilization, the Kyivan Church was

---

<sup>1</sup> The Russian church historian A.V. Kartāšev and the Ukrainian historian Ivan Ohienko affirm that the mission of Sts. Cyril and Methodius to the Khazars was in fact a mission to Kyiv and to the Kyivan ruler and people, and that the conversion and introduction of Christianity in Kyiv actually occurred in 861 rather than in 988.

drawn into the schism, receiving for centuries Greeks as their metropolitans, who headed the Kyivan Church as a Constantinopolitan Uniate Church. Animosity towards Rome did not exist at first, but was slowly and gradually introduced by the Greek metropolitans, the Greek clergy and various visiting Greek churchmen.

In 1073 Izjaslav, the grandson of Volodymyr, sent his son and daughter-in-law to Pope Gregory VII and put the Kyivan State under the protection of the Holy See, but this fact did not have any effect or change any religious aspects of the situation, because Izjaslav soon died. The descendants of Volodymyr were continuously warring among themselves and had no time to reconsider their ties with Greeks or with the West, or to think about the future advantages or disadvantages of union with one or the other. They were already tied by circumstances to the sinking Greek boat.

Notwithstanding the Greek negative propaganda, there were always relations between Ukraine and Rome. In 1169 the pope sent a delegation to one of the princes, although it is not clear to which one. In 1205 there were delegates sent from Pope Innocent III to Prince Roman of Halyč and Volodymyr Volynskyj. In 1253 Prince Danylo even obtained a crown from Pope Innocent IV and was crowned as King in Dorohičyn by the papal legate, Opiso. In 1418 Metropolitan Hryhorij was present at the Council of Constance, and in 1439 Metropolitan Isydor signed the Act of Florentine Union at the Council of Florence. After his return, Isydor found great opposition in Moscow, which then still belonged to the Kyivan Metropolitanate, but not in the Ukrainian and Bielorusian eparchies.

Pope Pius II nominated Gregory Bolharyn (1458-1972) as the new Metropolitan of Kyiv in 1458 after the resignation of Isydor, thus sanctioning the separation of Moscow from Kyiv which had taken place after the union of Florence.<sup>2</sup> After that, the Church of Kyiv went its own way, and in 1596 with the Union of Berestia it broke its ties and union with Constantinople and restored its union with Rome, changing from Constantinopolitan Uniate to Roman Uniate.

Later, the ties to Constantinople with a magnificent past but no future were supported by the Cossacks, and to save those ties the Cossacks in 1654 politically bound Ukraine to Moscow. Not long afterwards in 1686 the Kyivan Constantinopolitan Uniate Church together with the Cossacks were turned over [for payment of a sum] to the Muscovite Patriarchate making the Kyivan Church the Kyivan Muscovite Uniate Church, and the Cossacks were disbanded since they were no longer needed.

Ukrainian Institutions and Hierarchy in Rome

From the time of the Union of Berestia, Ukrainians began going to Rome, mainly for study. The first were students at the Greek College, sent to study for the most part by the Jesuits in the years 1576-1615. From 1615 until 1798 and from 1846 on, the students were sent to the Greek College and also to the College of Propaganda Fide mainly by the metropolitans, and sometimes by bishops or by the Basilian Order.

Besides students, almost always in Rome there were procurators of the Kyivan hierarchy and of the Basilian Order [the same office at that time]. After 1639 the procurators had the residence and church of Sts. Sergius and Bacchus at Piazza Madonna del Monti 3, donated by Pope Urban VIII and his brother, Cardinal of St. Onuphrius. The residence was initially intended for a Ruthenian College to be opened in Rome, but for different reasons the college was opened only in 1897. The building, which had undergone several different remodelings between 1639 and 1897, served as the Ruthenian College from 1897 until 1932.

<sup>2</sup> Moscow had separated itself from Isydor and from Kyiv and elected Jona as its own metropolitan in 1448, and eventually Moscow established its own Patriarchate in 1589.

After the transfer of the Ruthenian College in 1932 to the new building at Passeggiata del Gianicolo 7, the old building at Madonna dei Monti became the headquarters of the General Curia of the Basilians, and remained such until 1960. Then the Basilian Curia transferred to the newly acquired building on the Aventine hill, and the Church at Madonna dei Monti was sold. Later in 1970 it was repurchased, thanks to efforts of His Beatitude Josyf Cardinal Slipyj, and Sts. Sergius and Bacchus was made the Ukrainian parish church in Rome. The former residence became the rectory, the hospitium and site for the Ukrainian museum. It presently is also the residence of His Beatitude Myroslav Ivan Cardinal Lubachivsky and his chancery, and of the secretariat of the Synod of the Ukrainian Catholic Hierarchy.

The opening of the Ruthenian College was the beginning of a gradual growth of the Ukrainian community in Rome. In 1932 the General Curia of the Basilians was established in Rome, in 1939 the Ukrainian section of Vatican Radio was initiated<sup>3</sup>, in 1948 the general Curia of the Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate was opened, and in 1954 the General Curia of the Basilian Sisters. The Pontifical Ukrainian Minor Seminary, which had been founded in Loury, France in 1951, was transferred to Castelgandolfo in 1956 and to Rome in 1959.

His Beatitude Josyf Cardinal Slipyj opened a new page of Ukrainian presence in Rome and made Rome to a great extent the center of the Ukrainian Catholic Church by establishing his own residence in Rome, by building St. Sophia as his pro-cathedral in Rome with the seat of the Krylos transferred from Lviv to Rome, by establishing and building the Ukrainian Catholic University of St. Clement, by opening St. Sophia Seminary as the continuation of the Greek Catholic Theological Academy of Lviv, by the formal establishment of the Ukrainian Catholic parish of Sts. Sergius and Bacchus with the Ukrainian hospitium and Ukrainian museum under the care of the Ukrainian Sisters Catechists of Sant' Ana, whom he had brought from Brazil. In addition, he bought a large piece of property in Marino and founded there the Monastery of St. Theodore Studite for the Studite Monks. Of considerable importance towards making Rome the central headquarters of the Ukrainian Catholic Church was also his beginning the convocations of the Ukrainian Catholic hierarchy to synods in Rome, and his obtaining from Pope John Paul II the election and appointment of his coadjutor with right of succession, who also took up residence in Rome.

After his death in 1984, His Beatitude Myroslav Ivan Lubachivsky succeeded him, and was raised to the rank of Cardinal in 1985, with St. Sophia Pro-cathedral as his titular Church. He continues the work undertaken in Rome, finishing the work of the mosaic in the pro-cathedral and adding rooms at the university. New chancery offices have been set up at Madonna dei Monti with modern means of communication and preparation of material for publication. He has traveled extensively in Europe, the Americas and Australia, visiting Ukrainian Catholic communities in diaspora. At present he is preparing a new translation of the Gospels and Epistles into Ukrainian.

Another fact greatly contributing to the establishment of Rome as a center of the Ukrainian Catholic Church was the appointment of Archbishop Myroslav Stefan Marusyn as Secretary of the Congregation for the Oriental Churches. He had been Apostolic Visitor for Western Europe from 1971 until 1982, succeeding Archbishop Ivan Bučko who had the position from 1946 until 1971, and who also lived in Rome.

* * *

For a better understanding of Rome as the Center of the Catholic Church, to which the Ukrainian Catholic Church belongs, this chapter begins with a short outline of Roman administration, and also of the component parts of the Congregation for the Oriental Churches, one of the sections of Roman administration.

<sup>3</sup> A daily Ukrainian program and the Sunday Divine Liturgy in the Ukrainian language is presently broadcast by the Vatican Radio, beamed for reception by the Ukrainians in Ukraine.

Chapter 2 THE UKRAINIAN CATHOLIC CHURCH IN THE UNITED STATES

Historical Background

Most of the Ukrainians who came to the United States in the 1880's went to work in the coal mines of Pennsylvania or in factories. The first parish in the New World was established in Shenandoah, Pennsylvania in 1884, and its pastor was Father Ivan Woliansky (1884-1888), who also organized parishes in Shamokin, PA (1886), in Jersey City, NJ (1887) and in Olyphant, PA (1888).

Other parishes were organized in Pittsburgh, PA (1885), in McAdoo, PA (1891), in Mount Carmel, PA (1892), in Ramey, PA (1893), in Glen Lyon, PA (1894), in Elmira Heights, NY (1895), in Minersville, PA (1896), in Troy, NY (1897), in Ansonia, CT (1897), in Nanticoke, PA (1898), in Northampton, PA (1899), in Yonkers, NY (1899), in New Britain, CT (1899?) and Syracuse, NY (1900). Almost all of the parishioners had originally come from the regions north and south of the Carpathian Mountains of Eastern Europe.

The Byzantine rite Catholics living north of the Carpathians in the Austrian part of the Austrian Hungarian Empire under the Habsburg monarchy had been isolated from those living south of the Carpathians in the Hungarian part ever since the 14th century. Over the centuries, differences were bound to arise with regards to liturgical practices, language, customs, etc. When these people began to emigrate to the United States, towards the end of the 19th century, they often had to overlook their differences and share their priests and churches, which were few and far between in those early days.

The early immigrants were called by many names, one of the most common of which was "Ruthenian", and it applied to those coming from the north Carpathians as well as to those coming from the south Carpathians. On May 12, 1907, Bishop Soter Ortynsky was appointed as ecclesiastical superior of the "Ruthenians" in the United States by the Roman Curia.

Bishop Ortynsky arrived in the United States on August 27, 1907, and found that he had no jurisdiction in his own right, but had to obtain jurisdiction over his people by way of delegation from the Latin rite Bishop of each diocese. This was hardly practical, because by that time there were almost 500,000 faithful "Ruthenians" scattered over a number of states of the union. The Latin rite bishops did not all react in the same way to the request for jurisdiction. Some of the bishops, especially those of Irish descent, whose faithful had just come from a scathing persecution of their own at the hands of the English Protestants, saw plurality of rite as a threat to Catholicism. They considered that a division of ecclesiastical authority would of necessity weaken their already precarious position in a primarily Protestant country. As for a married clergy...!!

The question of jurisdiction was finally resolved on May 28, 1913 by the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith, and Bishop Ortynsky was appointed as Exarch of Philadelphia and given full episcopal jurisdiction over the faithful of Byzantine rite in the United States.

When Bishop Ortynsky died on March 24, 1916, a successor was not appointed, because communication with the European dioceses in Austria-Hungary was broken during World War I. The Apostolic Delegate was advised instead to nominate two temporary administrators - one for the faithful from the north Carpathian region [Rev. Peter Poniatyshyn], and another for those of the south Carpathian region [Rev. Gabriel Martyak]. The parishes were to be divided according to the geographical origin of the majority of the parishioners. Some of the parishes were more or less evenly mixed, however, and this was the cause of quite a bit of friction among the parishioners, who had lived together in peace before the division had to be made.

In 1924 the Exarchate of Philadelphia was divided definitively into the Exarchate of Philadelphia - for Ruthenians coming from Halyčyna (north of the Carpathians) and the Exarchate of Pittsburgh for Ruthenians coming from Transcarpathia (south of the Carpathians). After the separation, the people in the Exarchate of Philadelphia generally began using the name Ukrainian, whereas those in the Exarchate of Pittsburgh retained the name Ruthenian. Bishop Constantine Bohachevsky was appointed as Exarch of Philadelphia, and Bishop Basil Takach was appointed as Exarch of Pittsburgh.

Because of internal difficulties, 18 parishes and 13 priests broke union with Bishop Bohachevsky and with the Catholic Church on December 29, 1926. All of the parishes eventually returned or else the Catholics organized new parishes in the same cities, but this sad chapter in the history of the American Ukrainian Catholic Church left scars for many years, some of which are only barely healed at the present time. The remaining priests did their best to take care of the faithful in those towns and cities during the time of separation, and it is evidence of the strong faith of the people that they were able to survive this period.

After World War II, another large wave of immigration took place and displaced Ukrainians came in great numbers to the United States, mostly by way of DP camps in Germany. This new immigration, largely political in nature, was concentrated in the big cities, and many American born Ukrainians also began to move to the larger cities. The Exarchate of Philadelphia continued to grow rapidly, and by 1956 there were 305 priests, 190 parishes and missions, and 323,565 faithful, according to the "Annuario Pontificio" for that year. On July 20, 1956, it was divided and the Apostolic Exarchate of Stamford, Connecticut was created, with Bishop Ambrose Senyshyn as the first exarch.

Although most of the priests in the United States were diocesan priests in the early period, religious orders and congregations, men and women, also came to work in the missionary apostolate of the new land. The first who came and settled in the United States were the Basilian Sisters, who arrived in Philadelphia in 1911. The next were the Basilian Fathers, who went to Chicago in 1932, followed by the Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate who went to Stamford in 1937, the Redemptorist Fathers who went to Newark in 1946, and the Studite Monks, who went to Passaic in 1983. The Missionary Sisters of the Mother of God did not come from elsewhere, but were founded in Philadelphia in 1944.

With the growth of the Church in United States, the need of its own educational institutions became more and more evident. After World War II, in some of the larger parishes elementary day schools for grades 1-8 were opened by the Basilian Sisters, the Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate, and the Missionary Sisters of the Mother of God.

To provide education for the clergy St. Basil's Preparatory School (minor seminary) was opened in Stamford in 1933, and then St. Basil's College (major seminary) in 1939. In Washington DC, St. Joseph's (interdiocesan major) Seminary was opened in 1941.

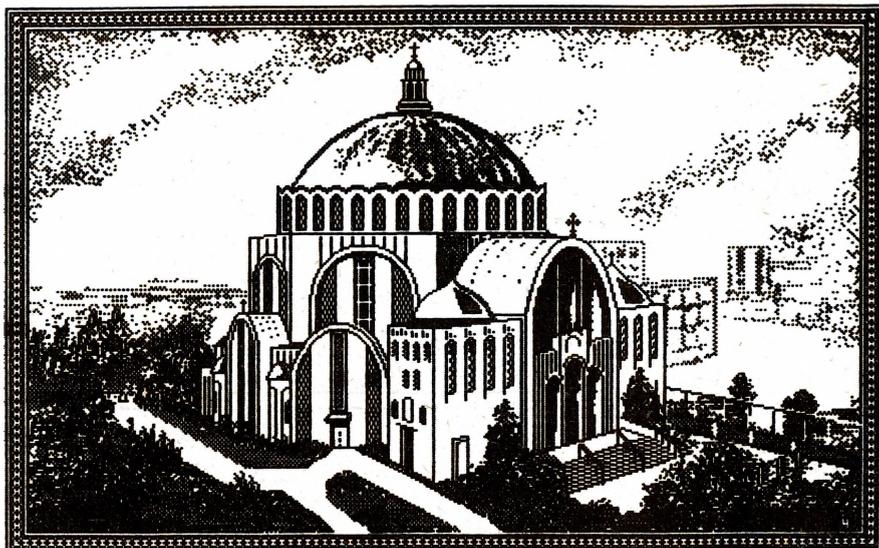

The Basilian Sisters opened St. Basil's Academy (for girls) in Philadelphia in 1931 and Manor Junior College in Jenkintown, Pennsylvania in 1947. The Sisters Servants opened a high school for girls in Sloatsburg, New York in 1944, and the Missionary Sisters of the Mother of God opened a high school for girls in Stamford in 1945. Two coeducational parish high schools were opened - St. George Academy in New York City in 1947 and Immaculate Conception High School in Detroit, Michigan in 1959.

The Providence Association, founded by Bishop Soter Ortynsky in 1911, became one of the strongest Ukrainian Catholic organizations in the United States. By providing insurance and low interest loans, mainly for churches, schools and rectories, it made it possible for many parishes and religious orders to build when otherwise it would have been very difficult to do so.

On July 12, 1958, Philadelphia was raised to an archeparchy, and Stamford to an eparchy.

The Eparchy of St. Nicholas of Chicago was created on July 14, 1961, with Bishop Jaroslav Gebro as the first eparch.

The Eparchy of Parma was created on December 5, 1983, with Bishop Robert Moskal as the first eparch.

The parish was founded in 1910 and the church was blessed by Metropolitan Andriy Šeptyckyj on October 2, 1910. Construction began on the present cathedral, designed by the architect Julian Jastremsky, in 1963, the year celebrating the golden anniversary of the Apostolic Eparchy in the United States. The newly completed building was dedicated and the corner stone laid by Metropolitan Constantine Senyshyn on October 16, 1966. A stone from the grave of St. Peter, a gift from Pope Paul VI, was placed in the corner stone.

The church grounds or "Ukrainian Center" covers several city blocks - from Girard Ave. almost to Fairmount Ave. between 7th and 8th Sts. The complex of buildings includes Immaculate Conception School, an auditorium, the Nativity of Our Lord Jesus Monastery of the Missionary Sisters of the Mother of God, the convent of the Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate, a day care/kindergarten center, two homes for senior citizens, and also the new rectory and the Metropolitan Chancery Office, both built in 1982.

A second parish was organized by Father Myron Danylowych in 1918, and a parish hall was built in which services were held. There were not enough people to keep the parish going, so Father Danylowych left, and the building was sold to the Slovenians who used it for their national hall.

After World War II, Ukrainians from Europe began to arrive in the area, and by 1950 there were 13 families and Rev. Dmytro Blazejowskyj began to hold services for them once a month in the Latin rite Cathedral in Denver, and the parish was established on September 15, 1950.

The parish was attended by Father Blazejowskyj, at first once a month (1950-1951), then twice a month (1951-1952), then every Sunday after 1952. Services were celebrated in St. Joseph's Latin rite Church from 1951 until 1954. A former Quaker church was purchased in 1954 and adapted for use, and the rectory in 1960.

The Gregorian calendar has been in use since 1955.

St. Mary's Annunciation

P.O. Box 205
Ramey, PA 16671. ☎ (814) 378-7688

Pastor: Rev. James E. Poorman [Яків Пурман], since 1975.

Cantor: Evan Switala [Іван Світана], since 1985.

Historical data: The parish, one of the oldest, was founded on April 7, 1893. At the time of foundation, its territory was bounded on the north by US Route 120, on the east by US Routes 64, 53 and 322, on the southeast by US Routes 22, 350 and 220, on the south by Tipton, on the southwest by Dusart, on the west by Westover and on the northwest by Ridgeway, as it still is.

The original wooden church building and rectory were erected in 1893. This church proved inadequate for the growing congregation and construction was begun in 1911 on the present stone building, which was completed in 1914.

In 1912, during construction of the new church, the old church burned down, and services had to be held temporarily in the hall. The old rectory burned down on April 6, 1932, and work on the new rectory was begun in 1937 and finished in 1941. The total area of the church grounds is about 6.75 acres, plus 7.5 acres of cemetery space.

The interior of the church was gutted by fire on May 7, 1972, and has been completely renovated and refurbished through the generosity of the parishioners and the dedication of the last two pastors.

The parish was one of the first in the USA to change over from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar.

This parish, attended by Father Antonin Strotsky, was short-lived however, because of opposition from the Latin rite Polish pastor in Hartford. Antin Lokot, a Ukrainian immigrant through whose efforts the parish was organized, then turned to Father Roman Zalitch, the pastor in New Britain and Terryville, to visit Hartford, and permission was obtained for him to hold services in the local Lithuanian church on Capitol Avenue.

A building on Walnut St. was purchased and reconstructed for liturgical use in 1910, and the parish was established. Living quarters for the priest were on the floor above the church. This building was demolished in 1955 to make way for interstate highway 84, and another building on Wethersfield Ave. was purchased. The newly reconstructed building was ready for use in 1957, and a rectory at 28 Alden St. was purchased about the same time. The combined school/parish hall was built in 1963/64, and the present rectory in 1983, the former rectory having been converted into a convent (presently used as housing for senior citizens). The total area of the church grounds is approximately 2 and a half acres.

Lead Singers: Ukrainian - Petro and Anna Holod [Петро і Анна Голод] since 1960.
English - Philip Weiner, since 1986.

Historical data: The parish was founded in 1912 with the help of Father Theodore Dwulit, a young priest who had been ordained in Peremyśl. Its territory was Herkimer County, NY, and at present it includes also Montgomery County. The church building was erected in 1912, with the land title in the name of Bishop Soter Ortynsky.

In about 1927 the parish became Orthodox, although the people seem not to have been clear about the distinction between Catholic and Orthodox at the time. In the early 1950's, a question arose about the ownership of the church and the jurisdiction of the parish, which was decided in favor of the Catholics because of the ownership of the land title. The parish was thus re-established as Catholic in 1953, and in 1960 a residence for the priest was purchased. It merged with Immaculate Conception Parish in St. Johnsville, NY in August of 1983.

The parish has undertaken a " Millennium Project " which will include renovation and restoration of the church building with a new holy table, tabernacle, royal doors and deacon doors with icons, an icon of the "Oranta" in the apse, and 33 icons on the iconostasis by the iconographer Ann Drozda from Pittsfield, MA.

The Gregorian calendar has been in use since 1953.

The parish was served from St. Johnsville (1953-1960 and 1970), from Syracuse (1970) and from Amsterdam (1975-1979 and 1982-1983).

In 1900, Catholics from Transcarpathia and Halychyna founded Holy Trinity Church on Beaver St. The parishioners from Halychyna and the Lemko region founded their own parish of Immaculate Conception on Winter St. in 1910. When the latter parish became Orthodox in 1928, those who remained Catholic rejoined Holy Trinity parish or went to the Latin rite parishes. Volodymyr Korchytsky from Colchester, and this parish was established in 1951. Its territory was the city of New Britain, whereas at present it includes also Plainville, Kensington, Southington and part of Newington, CT.

The rectory and land for a new church were bought in 1966, and the present church was built in 1974/1975, the parish hall being part of the church building. In 1984, the entire church was artistically painted in the traditional Byzantine-Ukrainian eastern style of iconography and ornamentation by Marenko Studios, and in 1985 a new church bell "Andrey" was acquired by the parish. The total area of the church grounds is 3,500 sq. yards.

From 1951 until 1966, the parish was attended from St. Mary's Dormition parish in Colchester. In 1965 Father Manastersky, the vicar general, attended the parish from Stamford, and it was again served from Stamford from 1972 until 1980.

CHAPTER 3 THE UKRAINIAN CATHOLIC CHURCH IN CANADA

Historical Background

The first two Ukrainians to arrive in Canada in 1891 were Vasył Yelyniak and Ivan Pylypiv from the village of Nebyliv, povit Kaluś, who settled in the present locality of Chipman in Alberta. Others soon arrived and settled in the neighboring localities. The first settlers were an unintentional advertisement for the new country, and paved the way for others to come, not only to Alberta, but also to other regions of Canada. In a relatively short time, they built several churches, waiting and hoping for a priest at least to visit them, even if he could not stay with them for long. The first wooden church was built in 1897 in the centrally located town of Star, Alberta. In 1898 two churches were built in Manitoba – Holy Spirit in Stuartburn near Vita, and St. Michael in Mink River near Sifton. Others followed in quick succession – in 1899 Holy Trinity in Honor near Winnipeg, in 1900 St. Michael in North Foley near Komarno, St. Michael in Wenlaw near Sifton and Sts. Peter and Paul in Sifton, and in 1900/1901 St. Nicholas in Winnipeg. In Saskatchewan the first Ukrainian settlers began to arrive in 1897, first settling in Rosthern and in the area around Yorkton.

The first Ukrainian Catholic priest to visit the people was Father Nestor Dmytriv<sup>1</sup>. He visited Canada from the United States in the spring of 1897, sent by the Ukrainian National Association and the Ukrainian weekly (now daily) newspaper "Svoboda". He celebrated the Divine Liturgy in Winnipeg, in Star and in several other places and then returned to the United States in the same year, but his visit had a beneficial influence on the Ukrainian settlers, who were all Byzantine Kyivan rite Catholics. The second priest to come was Father Pavlo Tymkevych<sup>2</sup>, also from the United States, sent in the spring of 1898 by the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith to work in Alberta. He went to St. Michael, Alberta, but remained for only six months. In 1899 a newly ordained Transcarpathian Basilian, Father Damascene Polivka<sup>3</sup>, came from the United States and celebrated for the people in Winnipeg, but in 1900 he also left.

In 1900 Father Ivan Zaklynskyj came from the United States to Star, and also helped to organize the parish in Hilliard, Alberta. In 1901, he transferred to St. Nicholas parish in Winnipeg and he remained there with some interruptions until 1903, when he left for Ford City, Pennsylvania. The borders between the United States and Canada had not much importance for the Ukrainian Catholic community at that time, and he seems to have done pastoral work in both countries for several years. He died in 1917 in Aliquippa, Pennsylvania.

The need for Ukrainian Catholic priests had been recognized nearly from the beginning by the Latin rite hierarchy – Archbishop Adelard Langevin of Winnipeg (St. Boniface), his Auxiliary Bishop Vitale Granden, Bishop Emil Legal of Edmonton (St. Albert), and Msgr. Albert Pascal, <sup>1</sup> Born in 1867, ordained in Lviv in 1894, arrived in the United States shortly after ordination, did missionary work in an extensive area in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut until his death on May 27, 1925 in Elizabeth, New Jersey.

<sup>2</sup> Ordained in Peremyšl in 1896, remained in the United States until c.1910 and then returned to Halyčyna, where he died in October, 1930.

<sup>3</sup> Born February 4, 1869, ordained on September 12, 1897, remained only a short time in the United States. The last information available is that he was in Chicago in 1903.

Apostolic Vicar of Saskatchewan in Prince Albert. This need was augmented by the fact that the Ukrainian people understood neither the Latin rite nor the English language.

The hierarchy saw that the lack of Ukrainian Catholic priests was being taken advantage of by the Russian Orthodox mission in New York, and already in 1897 two Russian priests from San Francisco, Fathers Vladimir Aleksandrov and Dimitrij Kamenev, had begun holding services in Vostok, Star and other localities, even in Winnipeg, Sifton and Stuartburn. The people had started to build churches in the hope of obtaining a priest of their own rite, but they had no intention of deeding over the property to the Latin rite hierarchy, which was normal procedure in the Roman Church, but which was viewed with extreme suspicion by immigrants who were familiar with frequent confiscations at the hands of the authorities in Europe. The Russians, who had no problem with the authorities because they did not recognize any, then infiltrated and took over several churches, including those in Star, Chipman, Rabbit Hill, etc., along with their congregations. Later these priests were joined by Archimandrite Arsenij Čechovcev, Fathers Aleksander Nemilovskij, Jakov Korčinskij and others. Beginning in 1903, two Russian hierarchs, "Metropolitan" Serafim Stefan Ustvol'skij (1903-1908) and his successor, "Patriarch" Makarij Marčenko (1907-1916) had started to ordain whoever was willing to pay for ordination.

Nearly as soon came the Protestants who were causing havoc among the priestless Ukrainians.<sup>4</sup> Already in the early period, some ambitious priests and laymen had initiated a movement for the organization and establishment of an independent national church. Three former Catholic priests began to organize and direct parishes without the authorization of any bishop, and were personally excommunicated by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj.<sup>5</sup>

Such was the situation of the Ukrainian Catholic community in Canada without priests. In 1898 Msgr. Albert Pascal went to a meeting of the Ukrainian bishops in Vienna. He explained to the bishops the great need for Ukrainian priests and asked them to send priests to Canada. Afterwards he went to Rome and presented a memorandum regarding that question to Cardinal Ledochowski, Prefect of Propaganda Fide. In both instances, there was no result. There was no other solution but to ask the Basilians, who just recently with the reform of 1882 were a small community practically beginning again from nothing, but after the reform had begun to increase.

Archbishop Langevin himself made a visit to Rome in 1898 searching for a remedy to the priest shortage. Returning to Canada through Belgium, he asked the Belgian Redemptorists to send some missionaries to his ecclesiastical province to take care of the Slavic peoples there, including Ukrainians. Responding to his plea, the Redemptorists opened a house in Brandon, Manitoba as a missionary center for Slavic people. The first missionary to arrive in 1899 in Brandon was the newly ordained Father Achille Delaere. Although he had spent several months learning the Ukrainian language, he still celebrated in the Latin rite, and his progress with the people was hampered by this fact.

<sup>4</sup> The first were the Presbyterians, assisted by some newly converted Ukrainians (Dmytro Jarema, Ivan Danylčuk, Mychajlo Bačynskyj, Ivan Bodrug and others) who infiltrated and then started court actions for possession of several churches, including those in Portage la Prairie and Gimli in Manitoba, Vegreville and Reita in Alberta and Goodeve in Saskatchewan. In 1926 they had 15 Ukrainian preachers working among the Ukrainians. In 1900, the Baptists began to form another Protestant group and by 1909 they had 13 Ukrainian Baptist communities. Then came the Methodists in 1905, and the Seventh Day Adventists and by 1926 they had 20 Ukrainian communities in Canada.

<sup>5</sup> The movement was revived in 1918 by a layman, the lawyer Vasył Svystun, and it succeeded in taking away enough people to be able to organize an Autocephalous Ukrainian Orthodox Church. After World War II their number was augmented by new immigrants, Orthodox by birth, and it now has its own hierarchy.

In 1900 the Latin rite Vicar General of Edmonton, Father Albert Lacombe, went to Rome and presented a memorandum about the needs of the Ukrainian people for priests to Pope Leo XIII. He also spoke about the matter to the cardinal prefect of Propaganda Fide. Then he went to Vienna and talked with the Austrian Minister for Foreign Affairs, since most of the Canadian Ukrainians were Austrian citizens. Afterwards he went to Halyčyna and met with Bishop Andrij Šeptyckyj of Stanislaviv, who promised to visit Canada soon. The bishop's promotion to the office of Metropolitan of Halyč and Archbishop of Lviv put an end to those plans for the immediate future, however, so he wrote a pastoral letter to the people in Canada and sent Father Vasył Žoldak as his visitor to Canada in 1901, with instructions to bring back a complete report about the situation and needs of the people.

Father Žoldak returned to Lviv in 1902, and as a result of his report and at the insistence of the Canadian Latin rite hierarchy, towards the end of 1902 he returned to Canada with three Basilians - Fathers Platon Filas, Sozont Dydyk and Antin Strockyj, a Basilian lay brother - Jeremija Janiševskij, and with four Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate - Amvrosija Lenkevyc̣, Isydora Šypovska, Taida Vrublevska and Emilija Klapoušok.

According to the Canadian Catholic Press, at that time there were around 62,000 Ukrainian Catholics in Canada, of whom 30,000 were in Manitoba, 20,000 were in Alberta and 12,000 were in Saskatchewan. In 1902 Father Filas made his headquarters in Alberta, in the locality now known as Mundare, and in 1903 two more Basilians arrived - Fathers Matthew Hura and Navkratij Kryžanivskij. In 1904 Father Filas was elected Provincial of the Basilians in Halyčyna, and returned to Europe. Father Atanasij Fylypiv was sent to replace him in 1905, and with him came two more Sisters Servants. Later on in the same year the priests were joined by Fathers Ivan Toločko and Atanasij Roman Wolynec, who at that time was a Basilian. In 1909 Father Dydyk went back to Halyčyna to recruit priests, but he brought back only three clerics - Ilarion Doroš, Orest Kuziv and Vasył Ladyka [the future eparch], who had to finish their studies in Montréal at the Seminary of the Sulpician Fathers.

The Basilians had settled in the three provinces - in Alberta in Beaver Lake (which was called Mundare after the railway station was built) and in Edmonton, in Manitoba in Winnipeg and Sifton, and in Saskatchewan in Rosthern. These places served as pastoral centers from which they served a wide area with villages often quite distant from the center.

In 1904, at the recommendation of Father Žoldak, Archbishop Langevin transferred Father Delaere from Brandon to Yorkton to take care of the whole region around Yorkton where the Protestants were particularly active. In 1906 he obtained permission to change to the Eastern rite, and he was soon joined by other Redemptorists from Belgium - Fathers Henry Boels, Noel Marie Descamps and Charles Techeur, who had all obtained permission to change rite and to work among Ukrainians. In 1913 with permission of Bishop Budka they built a monastery and a church in Yorkton, which became the headquarters of their pastoral activity in Canada. Shortly after, they opened another pastoral center in Ituna, Saskatchewan. They continued to come to work among Ukrainians in Canada, first coming from Belgium, and then from Halyčyna, where the Fathers in 1913 had opened an Eastern rite Branch and a House of Studies close to Lviv, sponsored originally by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj. Between the years 1922 and 1952, 21 Redemptorists from Halyčyna came to Canada.

The question of a separate Ukrainian bishop was brought up at the Plenary Synod of the Canadian Catholic Hierarchy in 1909, and the memoranda of Fathers Sozont Dydyk, OSBM and Achille Deleare, CSSR for a separate bishop were studied and discussed. In 1910, on the occasion of the Eucharistic Congress in Montréal, Metropolitan Šeptyckyj visited the United States and Canada. He went around all of Canada, all the way to Vancouver, visiting Ukrainians in different cities, towns, and even on farms. He perceived the situation with clarity, and after his return to Lviv he wrote a special letter of 24 printed pages to each Latin bishop in Canada about the crucial situation and about the need for a Ukrainian bishop in Canada.

At the Plenary Synod of 1911, the situation was again discussed and the letter of Metropolitan Šeptyckyj was examined. The Latin hierarchy gave their consent to the establishment of a separate Ukrainian eparchy in Canada with a Ukrainian bishop. When Father Nykyta Budka was appointed as Eparch for Ukrainian Catholics in 1912 and arrived in Canada, the Latin rite bishops handed over to him all the Ukrainian churches which had been deeded to the Latin rite hierarchy previously.

When the Eparchy was established in 1912, there were 2 secular priests in Canada, Fathers Omeljan Andruchovyč and Adonis Sabourin, 5 Basilians - Fathers Dydyk, Hura, Fylypiv, Kryžaniivskyj and Ladyka, and 4 Redemptorists - Fathers Deleare, Boels, Descamps and Têcheur.

In 1913 Father Philip Ruh, a German Oblate, an architect and builder of a number of the most beautiful Ukrainian Catholic churches in Canada, including the cathedrals in Edmonton and Saskatoon, became a member of the Ukrainian Catholic clergy.

The Sisters Servants have contributed no small part to the development of the Church in Canada. Since their unpretentious beginning in 1902 in Beaver Lake, they have increased their numbers and types of apostolate considerably, and have schools, catechetical centers, hospitals, homes for the aged, etc. in every province of Canada where Ukrainians have settled.

In 1925, there was a movement to open up a large Ukrainian settlement in the Abitibi region between Ontario and Québec. It was planned that about 10,000 Ukrainians would settle in this area, and Father Joseph Jean<sup>6</sup> was appointed by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj to oversee the project. A Studite monastery was built, and there was a school, library and museum. The idea fell through for a number of reasons, mainly because the people were already beginning to move to the larger cities and were not attracted to the rural life of the Abitibi. A devastating fire put a final end to the project in 1935. There is still a small community in Sheptyckyj [Lac Castagnier], Québec.

After World War II a second important period in the history of the Ukrainian Catholic Church in Canada began. With the shifting of the younger people to cities in search of better employment and living conditions, and with the influx of a considerable number of new immigrants fleeing Communist oppression in Europe, the whole fabric of the Ukrainian Catholic Church in Canada took on a new aspect, which was reflected also in its organizational structure (see diagram on p. 1295). The Apostolic Exarchate of Canada, which had been established in 1912, was expanded in 1948 into the Exarchates of Central Canada, Western Canada and Eastern Canada. In 1951 these became the Exarchates of Winnipeg, Edmonton and Toronto, and the new Exarchate of Saskatoon was established. Finally, on November 3, 1956, Winnipeg was made a Metropolitan See, with Bishop Maxim Hermantuk as metropolitan, and Edmonton, Toronto and Saskatoon were made eparchies. On June 27, 1974, the Eparchy of New Westminster was established. The hierarchy of Canada now has its own Inter-Diocesan Seminary of Holy Spirit in Ottawa.

The laity of Canada have always been notably active. Through their organizations they foster the Ukrainian Catholic spirit, not only among their own members, but among the Ukrainian Catholic community as a whole, in ways which could never be accomplished by the clergy alone. The Ukrainian Catholic Women's League is especially active, and has contributed greatly to the development of the Church in Canada.

<sup>6</sup> Born on March 19, 1885 in Fabien de Remysky, Québec and ordained on August 14, 1910. He changed over to Byzantine rite in 1911, and worked in Canada and Europe until he returned to Canada for the Abitibi project. He entered the Basilians on May 24, 1931 and took the monastic name of Josaphat, under which he is generally now known. He died on June 8, 1972 in Grimsby, Ontario.

Historical data: Ukrainian settlers began to arrive in Winnipeg in 1891. The first services were held in the Latin rite church of the Immaculate Conception in 1896 by Rev. Nestor Dmytriw and then in the Church of Holy Ghost by Rev. Damascene Polivka, OSBM. Both priests were from the United States. The land for a Ukrainian Catholic church was purchased on December 8, 1899 and the first church (St. Nicholas) was built in 1901. Property across the street was donated by Archbishop Langevin in 1904 because a larger church was needed, and another church was built in 1905, which retained the name of St. Nicholas. The first church was then used as a parish school for two years until 1907.

In 1907 a dispute arose over ownership of the property. Those who opposed the ownership being given to the Latin rite Bishop broke away and began having services in the former church, which was reopened and enlarged to accommodate 400 parishioners. They were served by Rev. Mykola Strutynsky from the United States, and the church was renamed Sts. Vladimir and Olha. The priest's residence and parish hall were built in 1908/1909. In 1908 the parish became the headquarters of the St. Nicholas Beneficial Association, which had formerly been at St. Nicholas church.

In 1912, the Ukrainian Catholic Exarchate of Canada was established, with Bishop Nykyta Budka as the first Exarch, and he made Sts. Vladimir and Olha his cathedral on April 25, 1913. The church was remodeled in 1926. The rectory and parish hall were built in 1944 and the present cathedral was erected in 1951. The total area of the church grounds is 4,414 sq. yards.

The Julian calendar is in use.

NEEPAWA Manitoba

St. John the Baptist

276 Elizabeth St., Box 878

Neepawa, Man. R0J 1H0 ☎ (204) 476-5845

Pastor: Rev. Emilian Pilkiw [Омельян Пінків], since 1978.

Historical data: In the early 1900's the locality was served by priests from Brandon, and services were held once a month in the local Latin rite church and in the homes of the Grasky, Wasyluk and Baziuk families. During the 1920's and 1930's, the small Ukrainian Catholic community struggled to raise money for the building of a church, which finally was erected in 1940. The first services in the new church were celebrated on the feast of St. John the Baptist by Father Joseph Pulak from Brandon.

By the 1950's it was clear that a larger church was needed. Peter Motuz and Frank Yakiwchuk donated 2 lots each for a raffle to raise the money for the new church, and the cornerstone was laid in 1959. The rectory was built in 1966, and in 1974 the interior murals of the church were done by Theodore Baran of Saskatoon.

The parish was served from Brandon and Portage la Prairie until after World War II.

The Gregorian calendar is in use.

Choir Director: Ed Sakundiak [Ед Сакундяк] since 1980.

Historical data: The parish was the first one on southern Alberta. The first priest who visited the area was Father Evhen Zaklinskyj in 1901, followed by the Basilians and Latin rite priests who came regularly after 1903. At first services were held in the Latin rite church of St. Mary's, and later in St. Anne's. In 1910 the people were encouraged to build a church by Metropolitan Šeptyckyj, and the first church was built in 1912.

The church was closed by the police for two years during World War I, because most of the parishioners had Austrian citizenship. In 1926 the church was moved to a new site in Riverside. From 1930 until 1937 it was under the care of the Basilian Fathers from Edmonton.

The priest's residence was built in 1944-1945. The Sisters Servants of Mary Immaculate opened a convent in 1952, and began teaching catechism in the parish. The new church was built in 1954/1959.

The parish had the name of St. Stephen until 1967, when it was changed to Assumption, and in the same year a new parish was established in southwest Calgary, under the name of St. Stephen.

The total area of the church grounds is 6 lots.

The Gregorian calendar has been in use since 1940.

Historical data: The first 4 families arrived in Manly in 1904, followed by 6 more families in 1907, and 19 more in 1911. The parish was organized in 1909, and the first church was built in the same year on 2 acres, donated by Ilko Krashewsky, the chairman of the parish committee. The building was put up by the parishioners themselves who cut down the trees for logs. The parishioners donated the furnishings for the church, and imported the bell and chandelier. The first Divine Liturgy was celebrated in the new church in 1910 by Father Matvij Hura, OSBM. The interior of the church and the large painting of St. George slaying the dragon behind the altar were painted by Peter Lepinski in 1917.

A 2 acre plot of land across the road east of the church was purchased and a small house was built for the cantor who also taught catechism to the children. On this property the "Менні Парохіяльна Зала" was built in 1920, and this building was moved to Carvel in 1931. The second hall, the former Manly schoolhouse, was purchased in 1957 when the school was closed. The church was enlarged in 1939.

Before the church was built Basilians visited the locality from Edmonton and held services in the Krashewsky home, spending the night at the home of one or the other of the parishioners. After World War II, when many priests with their families found refuge in Canada, Carvel/Manly had a resident priest - Father Volodymyr Zolkevich (1950) who lived in the old Mudry place for a short time. Priests then served both Carvel and Manly until about 1961, after which time Father Anthony Pawliuk and Bohdan Snihurovich took care of both localities from Edmonton. It was attended by priests from Edmonton until Father Gural (1967-1974) retired. Father Snihurovich then took care of the locality from Jasper Place (Carvel parish) until 1986. It is 2 miles from Carvel.

The first Ukrainians from Nebyliv and Perehinsko, pov. Kaluś settled the area in 1894, and the first services were held in private homes. The parish was organized in 1897, and in that same year Rev. Nestor Dmytriw from the United States came to visit, sent by the newspaper Свобода. He stopped in Edna-Star on Holy Saturday, and celebrated the Easter Divine Liturgy there, and on the Sunday after Easter he blessed the church and cemetery site. A collection was made for building the new church, and the sum of $5 was raised, which at that time was considered a good beginning. In 1898 Rev. Paul Tymkevych visited the parish for a while and the Christmas Коляда collection brought in $42 that year. In 1900 a wooden church, the first Ukrainian Catholic church in Canada, was built and Rev. Ivan Zaklinsky blessed it.

A controversy arose over the ownership of the property in 1901, and the Orthodox Community, under the leadership of a priest from the Russian Orthodox Diocese of Alaska took over the church. In 1902 Father Antonin Strockyj, OSBM, came to serve the Catholic faithful from Rosthern, Sask.
